—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

IDLE men rioted yesterday in London, Berlin, New York, Washington and other cities.

If Russia really pays the bills and hires all the people to riot, it must be costly.

Results hardly seem to justify such expense.

Forty-five thousand non-rioters looked on, while mounted police disposed of the rioters. Some were hurt.

It was remarked by the learned Mr. William Shields, of New York, that that city can always rely on its police, and the forces of organized labor are efficient as an "anti-rioting, anti-Communist" force.

If the unions had been back of the rioters it would have been different.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey sets an example to other oil concerns, voluntarily reducing its refinery operations by one-seventh.

Refining is a continuous process, and must continue seven days a week, but only six days actual work will be done, to prevent over-production and, most important part of the good example, men will not be discharged or have their wages cut.

Bishop Manning, head of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York, disturbed by the "war on God," which he finds to be world-wide, blames "the intelligentsia" in America for complicity in Russian attacks on religion. "Communism," says the Bishop, "has no place in the world of Jesus."

The remarkable thing is that capitalism should have a place "in the world" of one who said: "Take all thou hast and give to the poor, and follow me." Some, with authority less than that of Bishop Manning, think Communism at least as near to Christianity as Capitalism.

As English clergyman reveals King George's six maxims. All hung up on the walls of his library.

The first is: "Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game."

Excellent for a constitutional monarch, obeying the will of his people.

Rulers of a different kind, Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, had a different maxim: "See that you obey the rules of the game as I make them."

Yesterday Mahatma Gandhi, loved by millions of Hindus because of his sincerity, handed his ultimatum to the British Government.

India must be independent, allowed to run herself, or there will be "an intensive campaign of civil disobedience."

This means that nobody will pay taxes, nobody will do as the British tells him to do.

The Hindus do not feel able to fight the British and throw them out, although there are only about 100,000 Britishers in India to control 300,000,000 Hindus.

It would be interesting to know how Gandhi expects India to rule herself.

Who would take care of the Rajahs and hold them in check? Who would discourage the Mohammedans, fond of murdering Hindus, for religious reasons?

Who would keep the Afghans from coming in and murdering everybody?

Von Tirpitz, head of the German navy in the great war, is dead, and Germany will not forget him. It was his decision to wage unrestricted war on all nations, including this one, that forced the United States into the war.

Had the United States stayed out, the former Kaiser might not be living in Holland.

Airplanes took to England glass slides with germs of malaria taken from the royal blood of the Prince of Wales. His mother, the Queen, saw them.

You may see some like them, although not royal, under the microscope in the Rockefeller Institute. The malaria germ looks like a finger ring with a good-sized stone set in it.

The germ of whooping sickness looks like a small dragon with a big head, wiggling in its drop of blood, and the germ of the most dreadful sort of blood diseases looks like a red hot coiled spring, revolving rapidly.

The Bank of England reduces its discount rate to 4 per cent.

Perhaps our Federal Reserve will follow suit. Money is "cheap" if you have collateral, and promises to become cheaper, a good thing for those that own safe bonds.

Ruppert Raises His Offer, but the King of Swat Says: "That's No Dough!"

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The first salary conference today between Babe Ruth and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, failed when the home-run king rejected a compromise offer of $85,000 for 1930 or $80,000 for each of the next two seasons.

"What will be the next move?" Col. Ruppert was asked, as he called newspapermen into the clubhouse.

"I don't know," he replied. "This is absolutely as far as I can go with the Babe. In fact, I think my offer today was more than fair."

"What's $5000 between us?" asked the Babe. "That's no dough." The big hitter said he would play right along in practice and exhibition games "if they want me to."

DR. COOK TO BE GIVEN LIBERTY

Washington, March 7 (AP)—The parole of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, serving a sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., for using the mails to defraud, has been approved by Atty.-Gen. Mitchell.

Department of Justice officials said the exact date when the parole would become effective could not be ascertained from the warden of the penitentiary, but it was their opinion it probably would be tomorrow.

Dr. Cook was sentenced to 14 years and nine months on conviction of illegal use of the mails in oil promotion ventures.

In the penitentiary Dr. Cook, who years ago laid claim to being the first to discover the North Pole, has been editor of the prison publication, the New Era.

HOLD MODEL IN LOVE SLAYING

Buffalo, N. Y., March 7—Arrested in the slaying of Mrs. Henri Marchand, wife of the famous artist and curator of the Buffalo Museum of Science, an Indian woman, alleged to have been infatuated with the artist, today laid the killing to an older woman of her tribe.

She said the other woman was a Mrs. Nancy Bowen.

According to police detectives here, Miss Lillian Jimerson, a full-blooded Indian, whom Mr. Marchand had used as a model in some of his paintings, admitted she was present in the Marchand home yesterday when Mrs. Marchand was beaten and choked to death, but insisted that she did not kill her.

Mrs. Marchand was found dead by her 12-year-old son, her head battered by blows from a hammer and a chloroform-soaked wad of paper stuffed down her throat.

A German shepherd dog, noted for his watchman qualities, was in the house, so suspicion pointed immediately to some friend of the family.

The Jimerson woman and Mrs. Bowen were found to have been in Buffalo yesterday and were traced to the Gowanda reservation where they were arrested.

TEACHER FOILS KIDNAP PLOT IN LYNN

Man Posing as the Father of Child Flees in Auto as Police Are Called

A woman's intuition today balked the attempted kidnaping of Charlotte Eastland, 8, from the Hood school, Lynn, where she is a third grade pupil.

A man called at the school shortly after the session started this morning, and representing himself as Gardner Eastland, the child's father, asked that she be dismissed for the day.

Miss Grace Mitchell, third grade teacher, talked with him in a hallway and for no particular reason, save an intuition that he lied, became suspicious and questioned him at length.

"You're not Mr. Eastland," she protested finally.

The caller insisted that he was, and the teacher entered her classroom to fetch Charlotte. As she did so, the man dashed from the building, entered an automobile and drove away.

The school authorities reported the incident to police and it was established that Eastland had not been at the school nor had he sent anyone for his daughter. Charlotte's home is in Birch st., Lynn.

The would-be kidnaper was described by Miss Mitchell as about five feet 10 inches in height, 145 pounds, dark complexion with high cheek bones. He wore a black overcoat.

The wounded man gave his name as Fred Mantrie of Detroit. He is in a Lorain hospital in a critical condition.

Retirement Board Doctors Are Questioned Regarding the Physical Examination

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wood, Jr., of Winchester, son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. Oliver B. Garrett and two physicians from the Boston retirement board were questioned today concerning the activities of former Patrolman Garrett.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood were among the incorporators of Pine Grove Farm, Hingham, which formerly stood in the name of Mrs. Garrett, and the doctors participated in a physical examination of Garrett at City Hospital a short time ago.

The physicians, Drs. Fairbanks and Foley, were questioned regarding the examination, made at the request of Commissioner Wilson, which resulted in a report that Garrett was not fit to return to active duty in the police department.

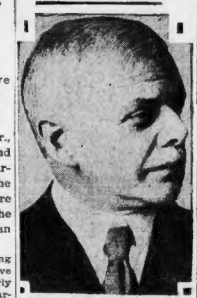
Halts Rum Test



Judge Morton

James E. Farrar

Federal Court Judge James E. Morton, Jr., quashed indictment by grand jury against James E. Farrar, Boston Elevated employe, who was charged as "buyer" of liquor by Dist.-Atty. Tarr in "test" case.

PURCHASE NO CRIME, IS U.S. COURT RULING

Judge Morton Throws Out Charge Against Farrar to Be Appealed

The purchase of liquor is not a criminal offense, Judge James M. Morton, Jr., ruled in Federal Court today.

He quashed the Federal Grand Jury indictment of James E. Farrar of Watertown for the purchase of two pints.

The case, which has aroused national interest in the possible reponsibility of the small buyer, will be taken to the United States Supreme Court on appeal, Assistant U. S. Attorney Elihu D. Stone announced upon learning Judge Morton's decision.

Since his indictment on evidence presented by Stone, Farrar has vigorously opposed prosecution through his attorney, James A. Cresswell.

In anticipation of Judge Morton's decision on the motion to quash, both sides had significant intentions of making the Farrar indictment a test case for the highest court in the nation.

In the meantime, U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr's announced campaign against the buyer cannot be carried forward because it will have no basis in law.

ACT NOT CRIMINAL

"The case presents a question of statutory construction, whether the purchase of liquor is criminal under the National Prohibition Act," wrote Judge Morton in his decision.

"The basic prohibitory section around which the act is built does not prohibit purchases," he ruled, quoting Section 3.

The federal indictment was brought under Section 6 of the prohibition act, which reads: "No one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport, or prescribe, any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the commissioner so to do."

Judge Morton upheld the contention of Farrar's counsel that this section related only to permittees and privileged persons and quoted a Supreme Court ruling to that effect.

"It is true that there appears to be no direct decision whether the buyer of liquor is guilty of an offense against the national prohibition act," he wrote. "Two circuit courts of appeal, however, have referred to the question and stated explicitly that in their opinion the purchase of liquor by the general public is not criminal."

Again he wrote: "Even if my opinion was to the contrary—which it is not—I should hardly feel at liberty to disregard such weighty expressions, especially when the same view seems to have been uniformly held by prosecuting officers, and by the public at large, for 10 years, and with respect to a statute intimately touching everyday life."

"The popular construction of such a statute over a long period of time was held to be highly significant as to its true meaning in State vs. Teahan, 50 Conn. 92, and State vs. Rand, 51 N. H. 361. In the latter case it is said 'that such a prosecution is unprecedented in this state, shows very strongly what has been understood to be the law upon the subject,' Smith, J.

"Moreover, the statute under con-

BOSTON POLICE DEFIED BY REDS

1—Boston police buildings still under heavy guard; police riot squads held on duty. Rioting feared with Chicago and New York agitators conducting demonstrations tonight in South End.

2—Three dead, hundreds injured, 600 under arrest, as result of disturbances in America and Europe; Communists plan bigger demonstration on May Day.

3—New York, with 100 injured; Milwaukee, with 47 arrested; Waterbury, Ct., where 18 are held; Buffalo, Detroit, Los Angeles, Seattle and Pittsburgh—scenes of worst disorders in this country.

With Communist leaders defiantly planning a parade and demonstration for tonight in the South End, Boston police riot squads were held in reserve for emergencies again today, and all public buildings were still under heavy guard.

sideration belongs to a class of which many examples are to be found in our legislation. While the language of them differs, all follow similar lines. All have been similarly construed.

"In Lott v. U. S. 205 F. R. 28, C. C. A. 9th, the court said: 'It is uniformly held that statutes prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors are directed against the active selling only, and that the offense is committed only by the vendor or someone who aids him in selling, and that the purchaser and those who aid him in the purchase are not guilty of aiding or abetting in the commission of the offense, Gilbert J., at Page 29, "We know of no law that prohibits the purchase of liquor."'

"It seems clear that if Congress had intended to introduce such a revolutionary change in existing methods of dealing with the liquor problem as making the ordinary buyer criminally liable, it would have said so in no uncertain terms, and it would have expressly proscribed the penalties for buying, as it did for selling, in far more definite language than that on which the government here relied.

"As I construe the indictment, it does not charge the defendant with aiding and abetting a sale of liquor. Even if it does, no crime would be charged. It has been repeatedly held that the buyer was not, ipso facto, an aider and abettor of the seller; and the government counsel conceded at the argument that no other relation between the defendant and Rotondo (the alleged seller) existed in this case.

"The act of April 30, 1789, as amended (18 U. S. C. A. Section 251) requires both concealment and failure to disclose. Under it some affirmative acts in addition to the concealment of the felony is necessary. Mere silence after knowledge of the commission of the crime is not sufficient. The allegations of the indictment do not bring it within this statute."

Doubts Congress Acts on "Petty Case" Bills

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Prediction that the Christopherson bills to give United States commissioners the power to try petty prohibition law violators would fail to get through Congress at this session was made in the House today by Representative Bachmann, Republican, West Virginia, who urged enactment of legislation to provide for additional federal judges.

Bachmann, a Republican member of the House Judiciary committee considering the measures which are designed to carry out a part of the Hoover law enforcement commission's recommendations.

Bachmann said before the Christopherson bills could be enacted it would be necessary to amend the Jones law to define small offenders.

Washington Silent Over Hub Rum Buyer Trial

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Prohibition officials declined to discuss the action of Federal Judge Morton in Boston in holding James W. Ferrar had not violated the prohibition law in purchasing liquor, but they said it was the first test case in which a purchaser had faced a federal court on the single charge that the purchase alone was a violation of the law.

Officials said that whether any further action towards an appeal from the decision would be taken would be decided by the United States attorney at Boston, but Commissioner Doran pointed out that the prohibition bureau had prosecuted purchasers of liquor only where some other element of prohibition law violation was involved.

Prohibition officials have not proceeded against the purchasers, he said, because section 6 of the nation prohibition law, which prohibits the purchase, sale or possession of liquor was regarded as applying only to non-beverage liquor.

The section was written into the law at the insistence of druggists and patein medicien manufacturers, who maintained that the original prohibition act did not provide them with sufficietn protectfon, officials said.

and is coming to me. Neither can I say how long the hearings will continue at this session."

Mrs. Wood, daughter of Garrett's wife by a former marriage, and her husband incorporated the farm with Mrs. Dudley Mulrennen, whose husband's horses Garrett drove at Marshfield Fair last summer.

The farm, according to the record, was sold by Mrs. Garrett to the corporation.

They were questioned by Atty.-Gen. Warner and Special Asst. Atty.-Gen. Damon E. Hall, and it is expected they will testify when the hearing is resumed, probably next week.

Mrs. Mulrennen was questioned yesterday, as was Francis La Croix, former manager of the farm and brother of Henry LaCroix, member of the headquarters liquor squad.

Another witness, Patrick T. McMahon of Newton, who, it was given out, constructed some of the buildings at the farm, was questioned by Asst. Atty.-Gen. George B. Lourie.

VICE SQUAD ACTIVITIES

Activities of the headquarters liquor and vice squad, which the pensioned Garrett headed for several years, are being investigated thoroughly by Atty.-Gen. Warner.

The chief motive in probing the work of the former Garrett squad, it was revealed today, is to ascertain the relationship in which they stood to a reputed "South End Circuit" of questionable resorts.

The alleged "circuit" figured largely in the investigation that followed the murder of Samuel Rheinstein in a Huntington ave. hotel last September.

That the attorney-general appears to be tackling every possible phase in the Garrett investigation was indicated when it became known that bank accounts of the ex-policeman's wife are being analyzed by an expert accountant.

Accounts in the name of Mrs. Oliver B. Garrett have been found in three or four Boston institutions, and the probers are searching other banks for any other Garrett accounts that may exist.

According to testimony already submitted, Garrett received a salary of $40.36 a week from 1919 until 1929.

Police made two trips to the reservation in making the arrests. On the first trip they took Miss Jimerson into custody and returned with her to Buffalo. When they arrived at police headquarters she told them the person who was guilty was Mrs. Bowen, and said Mrs. Bowen was hiding under the stairs in the house the police had just left.

The police made a hurried return to the place where they found Mrs. Bowen still in hiding. She was incoherent when hauled from her hiding place and mumbled a mixture of Seneca and English in response to the police questioning.

Anson Jimerson, 80, father of Miss Jimerson, and reported to be chief of one of the Seneca clans, was not questioned.

Capt. Connolly donned hip boots and began a systematic search of the neighborhood in which the two women were arrested. He said he expected to find the clothing worn by the women at the killing.

Police learned the two women came to Buffalo Thursday by trolley car.

They were driven to the trolley by Chauncey Taylor, son of a well-known farmer in the vicinity. Taylor was unable to give the police any information.

'BIG 5' IS BACK AT WORK WITH PARIS ENVOYS

MacDonald Urges Parley to Speed Up; Sees Treaty Assured

London, March 7 (AP)—Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister and chairman of the five-power conference, announced today, after resumption of negotiations at the end of three weeks' recess, that the parley was in full working order and that thus "all the prophets of evil, as so often is the case in human history, have been confounded."

He declared this morning's meeting of heads of the delegations, at which Aristide Briand, French chief, was present for the first time since the fall of the Tardieu Government, had resulted in advancement of the conference's work, permitting a new hold on the broken thread of negotiations.

He declared the delegates were at it again and that the conference was going to produce a treaty.

"If I talk with a feeling of buoyancy, I have very good reason for it," he declared.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Ambassador Gibson represented the United States at today's session.

Before the meeting M. Briand had a brief conference with MacDonald.

Prime Minister MacDonald was one of the most active figures at today's meeting, pleading for a faster tempo in the pace of the conference. In urging a speeding up of negotiations, he asked the delegations to submit their fleet tonnage figures immediately so that the category tables can be filled out.

With Tardieu absent, MacDonald will meet Foreign Minister Briand at Chequers on Sunday to talk things over, and on Monday the heads of the delegation again will meet to decide, among other things, when the next plenary session will be held.

Letter at Trade Commission Hearing Shows Danforth of Maine Was Approved

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A letter showing that correspondence on the naming of an executive secretary of the federal power commission passed between power company officials was introduced into the record today at the federal trade commission's investigation into the financing of public utilities.

Richard B. Scandrett, Jr., then vice-president of the American Gas & Electric Co., wrote Sidney Z. Mitchell, president of the Electric Bond & Share Co. in August, 1925, saying he understood O. C. Merrill, then power commission secretary, intended to resign. Scandrett said George C. Danforth of Augusta, Me., had been suggested as his place by F. W. Scheidenhelm, an American Gas consulting engineer.

Scandrett wrote he: "Advises me that Mr. Danforth's attitude toward public utility companies would be favorably vouched for by the New England companies.'"

"I unredstand that he has been constantly opposed to the present policy in the State of Maine in preventing the export of power and that he is openly opposed to public ownership of utilities."

FEAR REDS MAY RIOT TONIGHT

a mass meeting in a hall on Washington st., that agitators from New York and Chicago would lead the rally and that a street parade would precede or follow it.

Police will not permit any parades or street demonstrations, although they will not interfere with orderly assemblies.

A permit had been put up on Wells Memorial Hall, 987 Washington st., announcing the meeting would be held there, but the efforts of his wife and the announcement was torn down today.

The Suffolk County courthouse in Pemberton sq. was liberally sprinkled with uniformed and plain clothes policemen and special guards today because of the expected presence there of scores of "reds" in connection with the arraignment or those arrested at the Common and State House disturbances.

Because they had difficulty convincing State House guards yesterday that they were legislators, and were temporarily barred during the disorder on Beacon Hill, several members of Senate and House today suggested issuance of identification cards. It was also pointed out that such credentials would prevent persons posing as legislators at various times and places.

HUB COURT HOLDS 7.

Five of the six persons arrested at the State House yesterday were arraigned before Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster in Municipal court today. They pleaded not guilty to sauntering and loitering and were ordered to appear in court for trial March 13.

These five are Dora Delavitch of Loring st., Dorchester; Roy Stephens, Gold st., South Boston; Marko Whittier, West Sixth st., South Boston; Jacob Rosen, Columbia rd., Dorchester; Albert Daniels, Garden st., West End.

William B. Trafford of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, a Harvard student, also arrested during the demonstration on the steps of the capitol, was not prosecuted.

Samuel Wynn, Harold st., Roxbury, arrested on a complaint for alleged violation of park rules, was ordered to appear for hearing March 12, as was Jackson Waler of West Fifth st., South Boston, charged with assault and battery on John Kelly of South Boston on the Common. Both pleaded not guilty.

Benjamin Keiser of Green st., West End, charged with posting notices on telegraph poles, was found guilty, fined $15, and appealed.

With the fiasco of "Solidarity Day" to send them on, police officials fear that the Reds may attempt to make good on their promises tonight and that violence may be urged by the imported leaders.

Riot squads will be held in readiness to balk any efforts of the disappointed leaders to stage a post-mortem riot, it was learned. If the general panning which the small bevy of agitators received at their mass meeting on the Common.

Five men arrested in Worcester were arraigned in court there today, and all appealed fines imposed for disturbing the peace. Thomas Halin, 19, Clayton st., was fined $50; Moses Lerner, 32, Clayton st., $25; Peter Shiers, 32, Sterling st., $25; Harry Gilman, 46, Providence st., $10, and Egon Anderson, 25, Vincent st., $10.

New York, March 7—The lowdown on how Charles Levine happened to buy an $18,000 diamond bracelet for Mabel Boll is scheduled to remain a dark secret. Levine has persuaded his jeweler to pay up and shut up. Borris Proshaw, dealer in bracelets on Fifth ave., handed over $200 to Frank Aranow, his former lawyer, and everybody walked out of Justice Wenzel's Rockaway court without further ado.

Last January, Levine bought the armband for Mabel. When he failed to come around and pay for it, Proshaw retained Arabow to sue for the cash.

The wealthy Chicagoan won, however, in the court's decision that $1000 a month temporary alimony was excessive and ordered it reduced to $200.

It is rumored that both Morris and Miss Aubert are planning to wed.

RED THURSDAY IS CALLED A 'BIG FLOP'

Government Officials See Nothing About It to Be Alarmed About

Washington, March 7 (INS)—After scanning reports from all parts of the country, government officials came to the conclusion today that "Red Thursday"—widely advertised as the day upon which American disciples of Moscow were to enlist millions of unemployed under their revolutionary banners—was what would be called "a flop."

The Communists' show was heralded for weeks as the biggest thing the "Reds" had yet attempted in America.

While riotous demonstrations were staged in New York, Washington, Detroit, Boston, Cleveland, Seattle and a few other cities, rebuilding in scores of arrests and some broken heads, the day is considered on the whole to have gone off peacefully enough in view of the magnitude of the attempt.

The federal government adhered strictly to its announced policy of keeping hands off the demonstrations. Each community was left to handle the demonstrations in its own way.

The most satisfactory feature of the "Red Thursday" show, from the viewpoint of administration leaders here, was that while there may be millions of persons out of work in the United States, the jobless ones refuse to "go red."

If the demonstrations yesterday were designed to afford an index to the actual unemployment in the country, or whip the jobless into a rage against organized government, they are considered here to have utterly failed.

The reports to Washington indicate the show was put on and carried out almost entirely by those who were employed—employed by the Communist party. The leaders were, for the most part, professionals and old heads in the art of agitation.

Three Dead in Europe and 200 Are Injured

Berlin, March 7 (INS)—Three deaths and a total of about 200 injured was the toll taken in Europe's "Red Thursday," a check-up today disclosed.

The widespread Communists' demonstrations were generally mild. Here and there a disorderly outburst occurred, but disorders were always fully within the control of the police. During the day about 1000 Communists were arrested.

Two of the deaths occurred at Ammendorf, near Halle, in Saxony. Several were injured when the police clashed with rioters. One Communist was killed in this city.

In London the police kept demonstrations well in order. A few minor clashes occurred in Paris.

ARREST NEAR IN POISON PLOT

Madison, Me., March 7—"I expect to arrest a man as soon as one link in a chain of evidence I am working on is filled in," said Sheriff John H. Markham today relative to the "poison letters" addressed to five residents of this town.

All the letters contained small packets of poison powder. Only one was delivered. The other four were found at the Maine Central railroad station.

"I believe revenge was the motive," said Markham. "Suspicion rests upon one man. His arrest may take place in two days.

NEW IDEAS OF CAPITALISM AIDS PUBLIC

Hub Merchant Adds That the People Demand More Beautiful Things

Philadelphia, March 7 (AP)—For the first time in human history, "leisure, plus luxury, is happening to the masses, and mass culture is in sight," Edward A. Filene of Boston asserted today in addressing the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Speaking on "The New Capitalism," Mr. Filene said that if the consumer's dollar was to function at its best something more than low prices and high wages would be necessary.

"It will be necessary," he declared, "for the consumer to want more things. If the masses are working 16 hours a day, they will not become great customers, for they will sleep the other eight hours, and people do not buy much while they are asleep.

"This is the true business principle behind the movement for the shorter workday and for the five-day week. The new capitalism insists upon passing leisure around.

"This new leisure is awakening great masses of Americans to demand not merely for serviceable things, but for beautiful things.

"By standardizing production and distribution our capacity for wealth production is being multiplied, and the new freedom which this wealth is bringing us is permitting us to spend our time and money according to our individual ideas.

"What the Socialists dreamed of the new capitalism has made a reality, but not by their methods. Human selfishness and the ever-present human desire for greater total profits will lead to the adoption of the new principles."

RIGHTS GIVEN FOX STOCK

New York, March 7 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange has been notified by the Fox Film Corp. that holders of Class A common stock of record March 10 will receive rights to subscribe to additional shares and to debenture bonds.

This indicates the corporation is going forward at once on the refinancing plan approved at the stockholders' meeting, although counsel for H. L. Stuart and John E. Otterson, co-trustees with William Fox, has expressed the intention of halting the move through legal action.

The balance sheet attached to the refinancing plan as prepared by the Bancamerica-Blair Corp. group shows the liabilities of the Theaters Corp. have caused the organizations' financial difficulties. Current liabilities of the Theaters Corp. total $65,428,020, and eliminating inter-company liabilities, the current obligations of the two companies total $90,739,885.

Combined quick assets of both are $29,164,396. The refinancing plan will provide approximately $60,000,000 in new money.

LEGGE SEES END IN WHEAT DROP

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Chairman Legge of the Farm Board expressed the opinion before the Senate agriculture committee today that the bottom had been reached in the price declines of agriculture commodities and that improvement was in sight.

Legge with Secretary Hyde discussed the farm question at an executive session.

Afterward Chairman McNary called another meeting of the committee for tomorrow to consider the Nye resolution asking investigation of administration of the act under which the farm board was created.

Legge told the committee full attention of the board was now directed toward bringing about stabilization of agricultural prices. Wheat and cotton prices have broken considerably recently.

McNary requested Legge and Hyde to appear tomorrow. He asked them to submit an opinion on reports that a world-wide attempt was being made to depress prices in an effort to demoralize the new farm relief program.

Ex-Convict Held for Robbery in Newton

On charges of breaking and entering, larceny and possession of burglars' tools, Frank S. Miller, of Beach st., Dorchester, was held for the Grand Jury in Newton court today despite his plea that his arrest was an error that would deprive his wife and six children of his support. Police say he has a record of eight years in prison.

He was arrested Monday while ringing doorbells in Lowell ave. and police found three keys in his pockets. He claimed to be selling refrigerators. Police charge him with a break in Elliot ave. last November.

BATTLE 15 DAYS TO KEEP AFLOAT

London, March 7 (AP)—How the seven-man crew of the fishing schooner Dorothy Baird battled for 15 days to keep their ship afloat after it was disabled by a storm in mid-ocean was told today by Capt. John Willis before sailing from Liverpool with its crew for Newfoundland, their home port.

The men were rescued by the British steamer Valour, who found the crew working the pumps in eight feet of water. The ship was sailed from Pernambuco, Brazil, for St. John's, Newfoundland, on January 4 and was well off the main shipping lane when found.

A sudden storm had carried away the ship's mizzenmast and sails, mountainous seas swept the small ship and a spar struck the vessel's bottom, causing a serious leak. The crew manned the pumps, but after several days found them becoming clogged with sand from ballast.

"It was only when the situation looked hopeless and we had just about given up that we sighted the British Valour," said Capt. Willis. "Our ship would not have kept afloat another two days and our only lifeboat had been smashed in the storm."

Their arrest was brought about after Worcester detectives in New York captured John Lucas, 23, of Orange st., this city.

THAYER WANTS AUDIENCE

Fitchburg, March 7 (AP)—Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior court, who presided at the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti, today directed that henceforth those wishing to enter the courtroom while he is delivering a charge to the jury may do so.

Hilberic, court officers were instructed to forbid entrance to the courtroom once the judge had begun his charge.

Judge Thayer said:

"There are not enough people interested in court proceedings to know what the judges are doing in their interests. If there are some persons who are interested in court proceedings here I see no reason why they cannot enter this court room while I am giving a charge to a jury.

"If people took a greater interest in court proceedings they would know at first hand a great deal more about what is being done for them than they do know now."

Mrs. Fisk said Mrs. De Maret was unable to play golf and tennis as she did at home, that the food did not agree with her and that "she wanted to get back home, where she had a child of five or six." Mrs. Fisk added: "It was the first time she had been away from her child and her husband."

URGES A WORLD DRUG BOARD

Washington, March 7 (INS)—Painting a vivid picture of the blighting effects of the drug habit, Rep. William I. Sirovich (D.) of New York, a physician, today appealed to the House to inaugurate a campaign for international governmental control of narcotics production.

He proposed adoption of a resolution urging limitation of opium manufacture to one institution in each of the seven producing nations sufficient to supply the world's medical needs, all under strict control.

Filling a speaker's table with poppies, samples of vicious drugs and evidences of the ingenuity of smugglers, he punctuated his address with dramatic illustrations. He held aloft a Bible, which he said was used to smuggle valuable drugs.

He declared that there are a million victims of the "dope" habit in the United States and pointed to the increasing number of narcotic addicts found in the federal prisons.

CHARGE LEAGUE PLOT ON U. S.

Universal Service

Washington, March 7—Solemn warning that League of Nations forces are resorting to a stratagem to lure the United States into the league's court, and thence into the league itself, was sounded by former Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania here.

Speaking to an audience of millions over a national broadcasting company network, Pepper was the principal speaker on the second of a series of broadcasts sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution to awaken patriotic thought in America.

The stratagem by which the league forces seek to coax this nation first into the court is the Root-Hurst formula, Pepper said. And this formula, "containing a joker in every paragraph," the former senator likened to the famous wooden horse which the Greeks left as a "peace offering" to the city of Troy. Brought within the city gates, Greek soldiers swarmed from within its recesses and captured the city.

The Root-Hurst formula, Pepper pointed out, was put forward as a substitute for the Senate resolution upon which American entry into the court was conditioned four years ago, after that resolution had been rejected by the court members.

CEMENT TARIFF IS VOTED

Washington, March 7 (AP)—The Senate reversed itself today and voted a tariff of six cents per hundred pounds on portland cement, now on the free list.

The vote was 45 to 37.

On January 31 the Senate approved, 40 to 35, a proposal of Senator McMaster, Republican Independent of South Dakota, to retain cement on the free list.

Pending at that time was a proposed duty of eight cents, which is the rate provided in the House bill.

Garment Workers May Strike Monday

According to rumors prevalent today, a strike will be declared by officials of International Garment Workers' Union, to begin Monday. Sixty garment workers, members of Trades Union Equity League, an alleged communistic organization have been on strike for two weeks.

FRANCE SPEEDS FLOOD RELIEF

Paris, March 7—France moved today to the relief of her flood-stricken populace in the Garonne basin.

The Chamber of Deputies unanimously voted $4,000,000 for relief and is ready to appropriate more. The project goes to the Senate immediately and will probably be adopted without debate.

An official decree granted a 30-day moratorium on all bills and notes due in the devastated regions.

The flood peak has passed and Bordeaux is safe, but from Carcassone westward over 100 square miles or more wild waters have ravished the vineyard towns, with a toll of 210 known dead and a property loss conservatively estimated at $25,000,000.

Unofficial estimates, apparently well based, set the number of dead at 400 or more and property loss at $35,000,000.

The greatest loss of life occured at Moissac where waters loosed by a bursting dam swept down on the sleeping town, drowning 150. At Montauban the dead were estimated at 60.

Pope Sends Fund to Aid Flood Victims

Vatican City, March 7 (INS)—Pope Pius XI today sent a telegram to the papal nuncio of Paris expressing his grief over the deaths and misery caused by the French floods. He also sent $2000 to the Bishop of Montauban, asking that the sum be used for relief work.

"Be Patient," Allen Tells Unemployed

Governor Allen urged the jobless to have more patience, speaking at the People's Baptist Church, Roxbury, at the 125th anniversary of its founding. He announced that in a very short time the great program planned by the state in public works construction would be underway. This, coupled with the municipal construction of $100,000,000, will go a long way to remedy the situation, he said.

CHAOS ABROAD GAVE HUB TRUE REMBRANDT

The menace of seizure by reds and the later need of money in a small kingdom in post-war Europe, brought a very rare painting by Rembrandt, one of only about 50 known to be in existence today, into the possession of Robert Treat Paine, 2nd and is now on display in the Museum of Fine Arts.

The painting is known as the "Liesbeth van Rijn" and is a portrait of Rembrandt's sister. It is signed "R; van Rijn" and dated 1632.

One of the post-war romances is the story of the coming of this picture to Boston. It was in the inherited collection of the Prince of Liechenstein, a canvas listed and reproduced in the Rembrandt biographies.

There it normally would be today but for the menace of a red revolution which in the disturbed months after the war seemed likely to seize the Liechenstein collection, much as the private galleries of Moscow and Leningrad have been confiscated.

The principality of Liechenstein, though politically attached to Austria, is religiously of the diocese of Chur, Switzerland. When revolution threatened, Prince John, II, of Liechenstein, fearing loss of his artistic and other treasures, appealed to Bishop Georgius Schmid von Genneneck, beloved ecclesiastic of the region, for assistance in preventing a dictatorship of the proletariat.

Gratitude for this help in time of trouble led the prince to bid the bishop go to his gallery and select there any picture he might wish to have. His selection was the portrait of Rembrandt's sister. He later sold it here.

GREEN PAJAMAS A JOKE TO HIM

New Orleans, March 7 (AP)—Capt. Lothman von Arnault De La Periere, commander of the German cruiser Emden, good humoredly disclaimed having taken seriously his reception by Gov. Huey P. Long recently while the latter was clad in green silk pajamas.

Speaking facetiously, Capt. De La Periere told of the quandary he was in when the governor the next day boarded the Emden to apologize.

"I discarded the idea of receiving him in bed," he said, "as it would set a dangerous precedent. In the South Sea Islands, the native chiefs always received me in their own full dress attire."

Commenting on the rumor that the Emden, which came to New Orleans for Mardi Gras, would have left the city if the governor had not apologized, Capt. De La Periere said:

"You can tell the world that I never intended leaving New Orleans, but seriously I am sorry the laughable and lamentable affair occurred. I am more sorry that it got into the newspapers as it might lead some people to take the matter seriously."

PICKS GAY GOWN FOR FUNERAL

New York, March 7—A pink satin Paris gown, ruffled with tulle, made for life's gayest moments. A steel casket.

Christine Norman asked for these when she planned her funeral a week ago.

Today, arrayed as she desired, the body of the actress who committed suicide will be sent to Cincinnati.

In compliance with another request made in one of five letters left behind, she will be buried there beside her father, Andrew Norman. She believed she was a victim of the same incurable disease of which he died. That belief is said to have caused Miss Norman, estranged wife of Enos S. Booth, prominent corporation counsel, to jump from the 20th floor of the Hotel Warwick to her death.

DIVORCES HER SON'S 'CHUM'

Chicago, March 7—An unusual romance ended when Mrs. Natalie Bradley, daughter of Henry Blair, millionaire head of the Chicago surface lines, filed suit for divorce against Neil Bradley, alleging desertion.

When she first met Bradley in 1917 she was the wife of Harry M. Higginbotham, Chicago broker, 16 years her senior. Her son, Blair, 12, had found Bradley, then 17, wandering on the Higginbotham estate at Trout Lake, Wis., and took him home as a playmate.

In 1918 the heiress divorced Higginbotham. In 1920 she married Bradley. He then was 20, or 16 years her junior.

Burglar Shot in Leap Through Glass Door

Chicago, March 7—Henry Nelson, youthful burglar, did not throw up his hands when surprised by a squad from the detective bureau. Instead, he jumped through the glass in the front door of the store he was robbing and dropped dead with a bullet through his forehead.

Nelson, with two companions, entered the Earl Morrison drug store. A neighbor telephoned police.

Two detectives entered by an open back door, commanding the burglars to throw up their hands. Nelson's companions obeyed. Nelson leaped through the door and was met by the bullets of two other detectives.

U. S. Princess Gives Homeless of Paris Model Tenement

Paris, March 7 (INS)—The dollars of an American princess will be largely responsible for luring the beggars of Paris from under the bridges along the Seine.

The fairy godmother is Princess Edmond de Polignac, formerly Miss Winnaretta Singer of Pittsburgh.

She has contributed $75,000 to the Salvation Army as a building fund for a model tenement for homeless men, one of a group of six-story structures which will be known as the City of Refuge.

MUSIC IN HOME, BUSINESS URGED BY CLUB LEADER

"MUSIC is the open sesame to broad cultural life," Mrs. Amy Young Burns, State Federation of Women's Clubs chairman of the department of music, declares.

To the individual club woman seeking this broad cultural life she offers these suggestions:

Support music by attending some concert or recital every month.

Study the elements of music, whether you are a performing musician or not.

Enhance your love of music with a knowledge of music history and biography.

Read current events of the music world frequently.

These are splendid principles and almost positive avenues to that "broad cultural life" through which we all hope to travel.

Mrs. Burns records herself along with other prominent educators who consider music the greatest mind trainer in the curriculum of schools and colleges.

"With the above outlined preparation, any clubwoman will be equipped to serve the cause of music and the best interests of her community in various ways," Mrs. Burns assures. "Secure a place for music on club programs, if not at every meeting, then occasionally a dignified musical program which shall both please and instruct.

"Promote general interest in the observance of National Musical Week, which comes the first Sunday in May. During these observances talks, addresses and lectures are needed in the public schools, colleges, churches and settlement and social houses all over the State.

"Interest yourself in the public school music of your community. Does the system employed provide a sound elementary education in music for all the children of the school? Do vocal and instrumental music receive equal attention? They should. Do children have opportunity for musical team work in band, orchestra or glee club.

"These features will be added to school life in the majority of places, only as public opinion demands them. Such public opinion can be built up most quickly through influence and persistent effort of organized clubwomen.

"Persuade local library board to buy books on music. A good selection from the list of the music division of the General Federation will make a fine nucleus for a music department in either school or public library."

Massachusetts clubwomen may be proud of their accomplishments along these lines under the leadership of Mrs. Burns.

Because of wounds in upper and lower jaws, Morello was unable to talk but in written answers he insisted he had shot himself.

ATTACKS SWIFT RIVER PLANS

Hartford, Ct., March 7 (AP)—Dr. John H. Gregory of Baltimore, Md., recalled by Connecticut as a witness in the water diversion case of this state against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, today gave it as his opinion that the Merrimack river offered a better and more economical proposition than the Ware and Swift rivers, and that it would, with a total cost of $41,000,000, give at least 20,000,000 gallons per day.

The Connecticut delegation will leave Sunday afternoon for Boston to appear in the continuance of the hearing there Monday when the Boston metropolitan district water commission will offer evidence.

BEVERLY-HUB AIR LINE IS PLANNED

By GEORGE MAMBLIN

The newest flying company in the port, North Shore Airways, will begin operations tomorrow at Beverly airport, according to an announcement made by Bob Bernson, general-manager.

Weather conditions will play a big part in the opening of the outfit, of course, and if tomorrow is rainy, Sunday will be the day.

Two Arrow Sportplanes and the Buhl Airsedan will be on the line, ready for the first influx of joyhoppers, and Chief Pilot Lyle "Slim" Halstead, will be on deck, ready to carry passengers all afternoon.

Bernson stated that student instruction would not begin until about the middle of the month, because of the press of other business. Workmen have been busy daily clearing out a couple of low stone walls running around one side of the field, and chopping down trees which might come in the way of a pilot.

All the ships of the company have been declared O. K. by Federal Inspector Jack Moran, and Bernson states that the three planes were never in better shape.

One of the shortest air lines in the world is being contemplated by North Shore Airways, according to Bernson. The line would be run between Beverly and Boston, making several trips during the day. The idea is being worked out, and if it can be made to pay, will be inaugurated in the early spring.

North Shore's Buhl Airsedan, seating four passengers and pilot, would most likely be used for this line, with other ships being added as the business warrents.

WRESTLER AIR FAN

Because he likes to breathe clean fresh air on his journeys between cities to keep wrestling dates, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight champion, hopped to Boston on the noon Colonial tri-motor, arriving here shortly before 2 o'clock.

Lewis is an ardent airplane fan, making most of his trips around the country via the air lines, and stating that flying gives him more freedom, and permits him to stay longer in one town before jumping to the next one.

FAST CLIMBER

Olcott Payson, operations manager and vice-president of Skyways, took us up for a hop in the new Stearman, three-place open cockpit job, powered with a Wright Whirlwind J-6 Seven, of 225-horsepower. And what an airplane that is!

There isn't any doubt in anyone's mind that it is the fastest climbing ship on the field. We dived 220 miles an hour, from 1500 feet, and then went on up to 2500 feet without any trouble whatsoever.

NO MORE KINGS FOR ENGLAND

New York, March 7 (INS)—King George will be the last King of England, Countess Warwick predicts in an article appearing today in the current issue of the magazine Cosmopolitan.

The countess, a descendant of Oliver Cromwell and the royal house of Stuart, further declares the Prince of Wales "would make an admirable first president of a new republic."

"One of the most obvious facts in the world today is that the monarchical system of government has come to the end of the road," writes Countess Warwick.

"I prophesy with no small amount of confidence that King George V.—or maybe his successor—will appear in history as the last monarch of his nation."

NEW TRIAL FOR WOMAN LIFER

Lansing, Mich., March 7 (INS)—The State Supreme Court today ordered a new trial for Etta Miller, mother of nine children, who was the first woman in Michigan to be sentenced to life imprisonment for a liquor law violation.

The court held that the judge erred when he refused to charge the jury concerning Mrs. Miller's alibi defence. Mrs. Miller has been in prison for more than a year. A life sentence was mandatory under the habitual criminal code, it being her fourth conviction.

Gov. Fred W. Green recently commuted the sentence to 7½ to 15 years, that being the maximum for a fourth liquor law offense under the criminal code as amended in 1929.

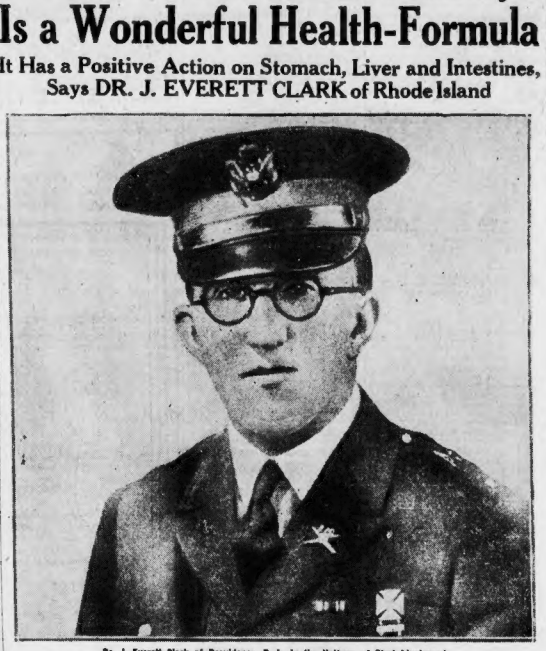
I Am Convinced That Flaxolyn Is a Wonderful Health-Formula

It Has a Positive Action on Stomach, Liver and Intestines, Says DR. J. EVERETT CLARK of Rhode Island



Dr. J. Everett Clark of Providence, R. I., in the Uniform of First Lieutenant

Another Doctor Finds to His Own Personal Satisfaction That Flaxolyn Merits His Personal Endorsement. New, Pleasant Form of Old Formula Is Taking New England By Storm.

THOUSANDS REPORT QUICK, ECONOMICAL RESULTS

Dr. J. Everett Clark is a member of that school of doctors who do not, as a rule, prescribe any internal preparations whatsoever. It is, therefore, all the more noteworthy to find that he, as well as hundreds of other doctors all through this country, are today hailing Dr. Luntz's Herbal Flaxolyn as the ideal aid to health which over 90% of our people are said to need.

Until now few people have realized the importance of correct internal cleanliness and proper stimulation of organic sluggishness. Flaxolyn safely, harmlessly, efficiently fills this need.

Few people walk around actually sick, but many—in fact, most—do go through their daily work and social activities in a condition very much below normal health.

Dr. Clark says: "After using the Flaxolyn formula, I am convinced that it is a wonderful product, built up along natural lines. Its positive action on the stomach, liver and intestines make it a remarkably efficient tonic-laxative.

"While I do not as a rule recommend any internal preparations, I certainly am happy to advise Flaxolyn. Several of my friends have used it and call it a 'wonderful product of nature.'"

Dr. Haas Tells How Flaxolyn Helped His Family in Cases of Constipation and Stomach Distress

Why is it—with the whole world of medicine to choose from—so many doctors select Flaxolyn as the one formula to use for themselves and for their families? Certainly Flaxolyn must be an unusual formula to merit this preference.

"Flaxolyn Great Aid to Those Who Suffer From Headaches, Nervousness and Indigestion," Says Doctor

Following is an extract from the personal letter recently sent to Dr. Harris H. Luntz, the discoverer of Flaxolyn, by Dr. Edw. G. Haas of Andover, Ohio:

"Dear Dr. Luntz:—I have used Flaxolyn in my family and have recommended it to my patients. The results have been excellent in cases of constipation and stomach disorders. Being a natural remedy, it is most effective in cases of headaches, nervousness and indigestion."

Gas Stops

When Flaxolyn acts, the formation of dangerous fermentive GASES in the intestines STOPS! The digestive process can work properly again and the body can perform its normal functions with ease. Sleep comes quickly—vigor follows naturally. In the words of Dr. Benedict Lust, Pres. Amer. Naturopathic Assn., "Flaxolyn is a natural food-laxative, following the teachings of the famous Father Kneipp. It is priceless in all digestive ills."

Dr. Edw. Haas of Andover, Ohio

Free Test of Flaxolyn

It is absolutely guaranteed in writing that Flaxolyn will help cases of general exhaustion, biliousness, sleeplessness, headaches, acid-dyspepsia, heartburn, belching, bad breath, blotchy skin, backaches, dizzy spells due to constipation gases—or Druggist refund the purchase price.

Every reader who would like to feel better, eat better, sleep better and look better, can obtain a bottle of the wonderful new vitaminized herbal Flaxolyn on this liberal offer: If Flaxolyn does not bring satisfactory results by the sixth spoonful, you may bring back the partly used bottle and have the full purchase price refunded! Flaxolyn is free unless it does you good.

Flaxolyn contains nothing that can hurt you, and it may prove to be the means of bringing joy to your existence. Don't wait. Start taking Flaxolyn. You will feel the tonic change at once. You will enjoy renewed vigor, a new and better grip on life.

No Honor, No Burial, Wife Holds Body

Liverpool, Eng., March 7 (AP)—The British admiralty is having other worries than the naval conference. Because the admiralty won't accord naval honors at the funeral of Thomas Ely, 61, who had 30 years' naval service, his widow refuses to permit him to be buried.

Ely died 14 days ago. When the public health authorities called, the widow slammed the door in their faces.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor Boston American:

It was interesting to note the onward sweep of democracy—portrayed so well in the letter from one J. F. Kelly—but the gentleman answers his own argument in his plan for a Greater Boston. The "federation of cities" within the metropolitan area is now a reality. But to call them all a "Boston unit" is wrong. Bigness of girth does not mean greatness." The State must be kept small that the people might be great," said Aristotle, the father of political science. To fuse said cities all in one lump and call it Boston would create a small plutocracy.

WILLIAM A. RYAN,
Promoter, World League of Cities, Dorchester.

Says Age Pensions Harm Job Chances

Editor Boston American:

Why not consider the effect of old age pensions on the industrial chances of the middle aged man?

The young man who has 40 years of the future to sell, has an advantage over the man who has but twenty years. This condition has always existed, but not until the recent times has the 45-year-old applicant for steady employment been further handicapped by the pension claim.

If at 65 or 70 his services must cease, and the employing corporation must support him for the remainder of his life, then who can blame business men for thinking twice before putting him on the payroll?

EBEN BURNSTEAD.
Director Civic Welfare Alliance.

Editor Boston American:

We read and hear so much about "personal liberty" in connection with prohibition. Did it ever occur to those personal liberty praters that they had lost their personal liberty long before prohibition? Yes, without a murmur. To jolt their memories, let me recount some of these liberties they lost during this age of industrial feudalism, and millions upon millions never think of it.

Smoking is prohibited in plants with redhot iron and fire all around them. You can't talk to your fellow employes during working hours, the boss doesn't like it. Telephone booths are provided for employes, but try to use them. No matter how important, it means discharge. You have to work overtime, often with single time, and you can't refuse because there are plenty of men behind the gate.

You can't have bobbed hair and short dresses. You can't wear personal adornaments. You have to sacrifice everything, for what—business, system, efficiency; you do not count. But let these same liberty loving citizens argue about prohibition, one would think they were free as birds, they dare anything—why, because they won't lose their jobs.

Father of Six Fails to Find Prosperity

Editor Boston American:

In reading the speeches of Mr. Hoover and also a recent speech of Governor Allen, I see what a wonderful condition of prosperity this country and this Commonwealth are supposed to be in. I would like a guide to find where all this prosperity is. I am a father of six children and am at present nearly starving to death. My rent is overdue and unless something unforeseen happens, we will be put on the street.

I am a building tradesman and cannot even find a job as janitor. Every job I have tried to get for the last three months I have seen men that cannot speak English, working on them. Yet, I see Congress is fighting to import more foreign labor into this country. I see by the press also that the Chicago racketeers are prosperous, so what is an honest working man who is willing to work, and can't get it, going to do? Starve and let the children starve with him, or take up a more profitable profession?

Has Remedy for Pedigree Hunters

Editor Boston American:

A vast number of brainless females of Boston appear to have gone clean crazy over that old fool fad—genealogy. Genealogy clubs are exclusive cliques from which the plebs and the proletaire are rigidly excluded. Only those are eligible to membership who can persuade the bosses of the hen roost that they have more or less royal ichor concealed about their patrician carcasses.

The result is that all the swagger set are busy providing themselves with pedigrees that would make the pride of a Kentucky breeding farm ashamed—are telling with pain, plaster and putty to rear family trees.

I'll gamble six bits that not one of them can go back three generations without finding a chamber maid or a liveried lackey in her royal line. If they will but look closely to the matter they will find woman slinging hash in hotels, or doing more menial things for hire, and men in poorhouses and penitentiaries who are much nearer related to them than are the has-been monarchs in whose worthless dust they are trying to plant ridiculous family trees.

If I were tied fast to one of these idling, toad-eating parvenues, I'd get busy in the old-fashioned way.

Modern American chivalry, Mr. Editor!

Editor Boston American:

After delving into some of the early history of this country, I found that George Washington had some trouble with a kind of prohibition in his day. The trouble arose from passage by Congress of a rank prohibition bill, which levied a tax upon ardent spirits. It forbade the manufacture and sale unless the tax was paid.

The law interfered with personal liberty. Many people thought that they had the right to do what they pleased with their own corn and rye.

In addition to this, they thought that alcohol was a good creature of God. Everybody drank it more or less, including the clergy. How times have changed.

H. J. JONES.

Another Critic of Civil Service

Editor Boston American:

In regard to the writer who signed himself "Disgusted" with Civil Service conditions in this State, I want to say that his article was so full of facts that it can be vouched for by a hundred other "disgusted" eligibles who but have no medium of protest know the conditions that exist, except through the press.

The garage of the State Public Works Department in South Boston has a ledger containing names of men who are recommended to the foreman by various pols and handshakers and none of these has ever filed a civil service application as chauffeur or laborer.

Also, I would like to have explained why the State pier officials are just taking on Hyde Park friends without the formality of civil service. The much overrated Registry of Motor Vehicles has employes who make it a family affair. One works so hard all days that he can report every night as a postoffice clerk. You see, therefore, that others who are eligible, like "Disgusted," have no chance of being called while these conditions exist.

Another Wants Share of Blake Estate

Another American claimant to the $50,000,000 estate of Helen Sheridan Blake tied up in English courts since 1876 was revealed today when Mrs. Nellie M. Conley, wife of a Readville firemen, announced she was a second cousin of the deceased and had filed claim with attorneys representing the estate. She is the wife of William J. Conley of Engine 49 and lives in Readville st. Mrs. Conley said she remembered her father speaking of Mrs. Blake years ago when she was a girl in Ireland. He was a first cousin, she said.

Bates Men Uphold Hoover's Peace Views

Lewiston, Me., March 7 (AP)—President Hoover's policy with respect to prevention of war was approved by the faculty and students of Bates College in a telegram sent the President today by President Clifton D. Gray. It read:

"The faculty and students of Bates College unanimously approve your Armistice Day address with respect to the prevention of war, and express strong hope that the London naval conference may secure limitation by substantial reduction of armaments."

U. S. NAVY BOYS TYPICAL OF NATION

This is the first of a series of articles on the "human side" of the United States Navy as seen by a special correspondent of the Boston Evening American and International News Service. None of these articles should be construed as the opinion or editorial attitude of this newspaper.

By WILLIAM PARKER

Aboard U. S. S. Tennessee, Feb. 3 (by mail from Panama)—The public man who once was quoted as saying that the American people should not be judged by men of the army and navy would change his opinion after two weeks aboard a U. S. battleship.

The public man would praise the morals of officers and men and have small complaint against their morals.

MORALS, HEALTH GUARDED

He might find the crew's quarters not exactly the place for a timid woman with a sensitive ear, but he would see an amiable chaplain working amongst the men, and an efficient senior doctor taking extraordinary steps to guard their health.

The public man would find that the navy has increased efficiency and proficiency to a degree far beyond that of any industry ashore.

He would see officers and men actively at work from 5 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night. He would see a continuous round of activity in preparation for war, men studying in classes under competent instructors, officers delivering lectures on tactics and hygiene to their divisions; and athletic exercises during rest period.

NOT A SIGN OF RUM

The public man could line up the approximately 1330 officers and crew of the Tennessee and smell in turn the breath of each man for a period of two weeks and not detect the odor of intoxicating liquor.

He would find the officers intelligent, ambitious, well informed on national and international affairs and utterly lacking in snobbishness.

At the end, the public man would come ashore convinced that his navy might be equalled but could not be exceeded in efficiency and proficiency anywhere else in the world.

PLEADS TO END LITERATURE CENSORSHIP

Washington, March 7 (INS)—In support of his amendment to the tariff that would eliminate censorship of literature by customs officials, Senator Cutting (R.), of New Mexico, introduced in the Senate today a petition bearing the signatures of 500 educators, ministers and citizens.

He said the petition, signed by Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard Law School; Joseph Mayer, of the American Association of University Professors, and others, "indicates the attitude of leaders of thought toward the present administration of federal censorship laws."

He charged censorship methods of the customs officials were "hobbling American thought," and appealed for "at least a provision which would make these books available to mature students and statesmen."

Senator Smoot (R.), of Utah, and chairman of the Senate finance committee in charge of the tariff bill, opposed the cutting proposal and has announced he will read extracts from some of the censored boks to the Senate in an effort to defeat Cutting's amendment.

Cutting declared the "only true test" of censorship must be taken among educators and intellectual leaders.

"It is a most impressive unanimity of opnion on the part of these gentlemen, who differ on so many other subjects," Cutting added.

Nab Worcester Theft Suspect in N. Y.

New York, March 7 (AP)—Held as a fugitive from justice, John Lucas, 21, a window cleaner, confessed today, police said, to participation in four holdups in Worcester, Mass.

He gave his Worcester address as 37 Orange st. and said that with two others he staged four holdups and a safe burglary there in a month. According to police records Lucas was sentenced in 1924 in Worcester to five years in th Concord Reformatory for grand larceny.

FIRST NIGHT TRIUMPH FOR FILM

The Cast

Huguette	Lillian Roth
Tabbetti	Warner Oland
Olivier	Arthur Stone
Astrologer	Thomas Ricketts

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

FOR one night, at least, the heart of the Rialto skipped a few beats on Tremont st. and throbbed wildly as upper Huntington ave. At the modest price of five dollars a head, Paramount's newest demonstration in sound and color, "The Vagabond King," moved the night life of the city from downtown to the Public theater called Uptown. It was a new sensation for that staid and settled region of symphony concerts and flower shows. More than that, it was an awakening; for never before, in these quarters, has it been necessary to call forth police reserves to protect a theater from charging mobs of well-meaning but earnest customers.

IT has been related that similar scenes were enacted when "The Vagabond King" made its first appearance on Broadway two weeks ago. What is apparently started as a small local Manhattan disturbance over something new and inviting in filmdom has, it appears, become an epidemic. And all for a strip of celluloid in sound and color! Not exactly; for pictures in dialogue and natural tints have become something of a standardized diet with the cinema's faithful disciples. But news travels and penetrates. And somehow everybody who knows his pictures and enjoys them sensed more than excellent prospects in an evening with Dennis King as the roystering poet of "The Vagabond King." The scenes around the Uptown Theater last night made their own record; it was the biggest time for two hours any theater in the city limits has ever faced.

PICTURE values must be determined on items more tangible than anxious patrons crowding the lobbies and begging for seats at a premiere. That's old stuff. Here, however, appeared something on the screen, not without flaws, mind you, but with beauties that not even glaring errors of performance could submerge. There was color; there was some of it excellent; there were voices to take full measure of the Rudolph Friml score and give it vigorous, fullsome tones. But not even these qualities could match in any degree, although they were a part of it, the finished direction and stagecraft devised and carried through by that talented director from over the seas, Dr. Ludwig Berger. With Technicolor's matchless natural tints as first aid to a perspiring director, Dr. Berger gave "The Vagabond King" more than any film's share of just what makes a picture fascinating instead of commonplace.

AN excellent cast, small but certain, played the roles. Mr. King, who is no great songster, but a virile, dimpled young blond, put blood, iron and swaggering gusto into his task. Mr. King is an appealing young man, well schooled in the oral drama, and just the lad to accelerate every maidenish pulse. Jeanette MacDonald, fair and charming, was the lovely Katherine. Acting honors of the piece, however, rested easily in the capable hands of O. P. Heggie as the slant-brained Louis XI Mr. Heggie made short and thorough work of his part in this invigorating romance. Lillian Roth, as the hoydenish Huguette, gave a touch of life and color to a role that demands much of the player but which yields little in glory.

FOLLOWING strictly upon the continuity of the stage operetta, "The Vagabond King," as Dr. Berger has amplified it, ran into massive productions and imposing ensembles. There were eye filling spectacles; Villon's frantic vagabond mob in carousal and on the field of battle; and Louis' stately court in bewildering array. There were no shallow spots. To the eye it was a staggering perspective in color and vista.

OPERATIC LUMINARIES GIVEN PRIZE TALKIE ROLES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by National Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, March 7—The lads with voices are getting many of Hollywood's fattest roles. Everett Marshall, the Metropolitan Opera baritone brought cash to Hollywood by William LeBaron, will make his screen debut in "Dixiana" opposite Bebe Daniels. Bebe heard him sing and made the request that since "Dixiana" is to be a musical comedy, who better than Mr. Marshall could play opposite her.

GLORIA SWANSON, not to be outdone, has Herbert Braggiotti, an operatic newcomer, in "What a Widow." Joseph P. Kennedy is so sure you will hear of him and like him that he has taken an option on Braggiotti's services.

Louella O. Parsons

I am told that "Dixiana" will be made with a wide film, and Bert Wheeler and Hobby Woolsey, the two actors who did so much on the comedy end in "Rio Rita," will be with Miss Daniels again. The music is by Harry Tierney, libretto by Anne Caldwell, with Luther Reed directing.

• • •

SAMUEL SHIPMAN had high hopes that his play "East is West" would come to the screen as a musical comedy. His idea was probably inspired by the plans made to put it on Broadway with music. I have an idea that Sammy changed his mind when Universal paid him a pleasant sum for the privilege of converting it into a talkie. Lupe Velez will play the little Chinese girl, the same fascinating young person that Fay Bainter created on the stage and later Constance Talmadge played in the silent version. While Lupe played Spanish, French-Canadian roles and a little of everything, this will be her first role as an Oriental.

ADOLPHE MENJOU and Katherine Carver Menjou are on their way to America. They sailed on the Majestic yesterday. There is a persistent rumor that Adolphe will talk business with the Fox Company when he gets here.

"MEN WITHOUT WOMEN" IS PHOTOPLAY SUPERB

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"MEN WITHOUT WOMEN" moved quietly into the New B. F. Keith's yesterday. Here was a premiere with only a fanfare of a day's newspaper advertising; otherwise it was unheralded. And yet it was a major motion picture event, made so by the great audiences in this luxurious showhouse, and more particularly by the kind of film this is. "Men Without Women" is magnificent and no lover of the best in screen entertainment should miss it.

NO production of 1929, in our opinion, reaches in the point of motion picture values, this early masterly child of 1930. Yes, we do have in mind "Disraeli" as the best of last year's effort. "Men Without Women" held us at close attention throughout; and at the end we could think of one weakness only—the title. It does not begin to suggest the "meat" in this offering, nor its deliciously natural comedy. That title errs further in making us think in advance we are to see no women; as a truth, women do appear. This is in the prologue sequence, which by the bye is very lively, thanks to the feminine contribution. It should be explained that the film's name refers to the later chapters, the experiences and rescues of the men trapped in the sunken submarine. Barring this one minor item, we found "Men Without Women" one of the finest things we have had before us for silver sheet enjoyment in a long, long time.

Paul Page

OF course, the fate of the S-4 will recur to all Bostonians who see this show. That disaster was made vivid to us by the personal attention of a friend, Capt. James D. Willson, yard commandant at the time at the Charlestown Navy Yard. He led us down into the hull of that tomb shortly after it had been raised and put into drydock; he explained what had taken place. So when we sat in a loge at Keith's, we watched, remembering all we kenw of the S-4; and if navy man there be who can pick flaws in the screen story, then we miss our guess by a wide margin.

YET it is by no mere attention to detail that "Men Without Women" attains true greatness. For background it has a genuinely stirring story; it is dramatic to the last degree. The dialogue is unusually fine. There isn't a dull word, hardly, not to speak of a line. And the acting is so exceptional that the whole gripping tale becomes real. That golden thread of humor that comes now and again and then again, to break the tension, is all natural; it is never forced, it is never flat. John Ford's direction is wellnigh perfect; his film offspring moves smoothly, rapidly, with genuine fidelity to the realities.

LET it not be thought that "Men Without Women" relies, for its merit, upon the innate tragedy of its theme. It is in the lifelikeness that it achieves its end of being superb photoplay. These different characters, men just as you or I might be, varying in mental makeup, play truth before our eyes. Each meets the big emergency in his own way; and so you have interchange of the serious and the laughable. There are touches galore that are sure-fire for clutching the emotions. Among the stellar performers in this notably well balanced cast, where there is no electric light star but where every man does his full duty, are Kenneth McKenna, Frank Albertson, Paul Page, Farrell MacDonald, Warren Hymer, Stuart Erwin and Walter McGrail. But all the rest of them seem to be about as capable.

We heartily recommend "Men Without Women" as a great and a rare photoplay.

COLOR FILMS FIND FAVOR

KEEN enthusiasm in Europe for natural color motion pictures, especially in London and Berlin, was reported by Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus of Boston, president of Technicolor, Inc., on his return from the Continent. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kalmus, who is the pioneer color director of motion pictures.

While in England, Dr. Kalmus stated, he received so many favorable offers of business from British film producers that a technicolor plant will be constructed in England in the immediate future to supply the demands of the European market.

In London at the present time, he said, several technicolor films, notably "On With the Show," "Rio Rita" and "Gold Diggers of Broadway," are playing to sensational business. The Berlin motion picture public likewise is enthusiastic over color films, he said, despite the fact that owing to the current legal situation there holding up the presentation of American sound films.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, March 7.

"JOURNEY'S END," which will soon complete a year's run at Henry Miller's Theater, has just given its first performance with American-built scenery. Until this change at the Henry Miller, "Journey's End" has been played in a dug-out set which was built and constructed in England and brought to America at the time of the arrival of this original company of British actors. However, the American ruling stipulates that no stage settings built outside of the United States may be used in this country longer than one year. This is responsible for the substitution on this date of the American-built scenery which has been used heretofore by the Southern "Journey's End" company, one of the five which have been touring the United States.

The unit of players constituting the "Journey's End" company playing here is nearing the end of its first six months' extension of time, and Gilbert Miller, who brought "Journey's End" to America, is now asking the authorities for a second extension for these same players, that they may continue their uninterrupted run for another six months.

ONE MAN SHOW HERE FOR ONE DAY STAND

VICTOR CHENKIN, famous European interpreter of international character songs, will give his single recital in Boston next Sunday evening at the Franklin Park Theater. Among the songs in his repertory is the Ukrainian group. When he decided to abandon the dramatic stage for the one-man repertory idea he cast about in his remembrance and experience for the most representative characters of Europe. The Ukrainian was one of the first to occur to him, due, no doubt, to the fact that Ukrainians are scattered through Central Europe, various tribes of them occuring particularly in southern Russia, where Chenkin spent his boyhood, in Austria and in Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia.

MARY BRIAN AGAIN HIS SWEETIE

The Cast

Capt. Braydon	Gary Cooper
Barbara Falkoon	Mary Brian
Capt. Darrington	Phillips Holmes
Vance Colbeau	James Neill
Tom Waddell	Morgan Farley
General Grant	Guy Oliver
General Lee	John M. Elliott
The Colonel	F. H. Calvert
Elizabeth	Virginia Brun
Lucy Cameron	Elda Sartiel
The Scotty	William LeMaire
Elizabeth's Lover	Freeman S. Wood
Grant's Secretary	Lois Eastman

GARY COOPER and Mary Brian teamed up for wooing in a photoplay based upon the Civil War, and a Louis McDermott revue, "Puttin' on the Dog," with Sammy Cohen, of filmland in person, make up the big features of the Metropolitan program for the new week. The picture is entertaining, and the stage show is snappy and classy. There are other items that make the bill a generous one.

• • •

"ONLY THE BRAVE" is the title of Mr. Cooper's present starring vehicle. Naturally, to the huge delight of the feminine fans, his role gives full play to the vigorous manliness of this playboy from Montana.

Mary Brian

For many a girl's heart the foregoing statement will no doubt be sufficient recommendation to this new offering. But it must be added that "Only the Brave" shows Cooper to a better advantage than some of his previous films.

There is something about this tall, manly Montana youth that seems to mark him to thousand of admirers as the perfect American type. He is virile and gallant, but yet not given to thunderous outpourings of unseemly emotion. His quiet courage apparently inspires hero-worship.

Paramount chose Mary Brian as the sweetheart for Mr. Cooper. Their success as the lovers in "The Virginian" found great favor with film fans everywhere. "Only the Brave" is from an original story by Keene Thompson. It deals with the crinoline days when Grant and Lee were saying it with cannon and troops. Gary Cooper is a captain of cavalry on the Union side who, embittered because his sweetheart has jilted him, volunteers for spy duty. Accordingly he is sent behind the Southern lines with a packet of false dispatches. His ruse is to be arrested, and to have the false dispatches discovered by the enemy, who will then be misled into a fatal movement of troops.

But he meets Maty Brian and the plot then becomes a series of adventures in which Love and Duty fight for eminence. The ending is a happy one.

ON stage: "Putting on the Dog" has Sammy Cohen; Doris Roche, the personality girl; George Ali, canine impersonator; Barbarena, artistic toe dancer; Jed Brady's collies, and the Fred Evans Girls; all appear in this ritzy revue of high life, with Bobby Jackson as guest master of ceremonies. Arthur Gleisler and the Grand Orchestra present "Rubinstein Melodies."

"Overnight"

Dialogue rights to Philip Barthelonme's play, "Overnight," has been secured by M-G-M for a sound version. The silent picture rights are already owned by the company.

"Ladies' Love Bates" will be Mary Astor's next picture.

PARK SCREENS BIG STAGE HIT

"THE MELODY MAN," the popular stage success has been transferred to the screen by Columbia Pictures and will have its picture premiere tomorrow at the Park.

Alice Day

The stage play was written by the famous trio, Herbert Fields, Lorens Hart and Richard Rodgers. "The Melody Man" was one of the sensations of the season, it ran because of the great human interest appeal of its drama. It played to capacity houses during its entire Broadway showing and enjoyed an equally successful run on the road. Lew Fields, famous character comedian, played the role that is interpreted on the screen by John St. Polis. Although music figures prominently in the picture, it is not a musical comedy. Alice Day and William Collier, Jr., are featured players.

Fields, Rodgers and Hart, the authors, have to their credit many stage productions of note including such successes as "The Garrick Gaieties," "The Girl Friend," "Connecticut Yankee," "Present Arms" and "Peggy Ann."

All of these enjoyed phenomenal runs.

Both because of its colorful locale and the novel situations of the story, "The Melody Man" lends itself admirably to the new cinema technique — technicolor. An entire sequence of this production will be in color.

"All Quiet"

SCREEN DEBUT OF HUMORIST WITH MARION

DONALD OGDEN STEWART, who has been recognized for years as one of the country's leading humorists, make his feature motion picture debut in Marion Davies' new starring film, "Not So Dumb," which King Vidor directed, and which is now at Loew's State

Last season Stewart attained considerable prestige on the legitimate stage by his performance in Philip Barry's comedy, "Holiday." The famous humorist went out to the M-G-M studio with the intention of writing original stories, but apparently this histronic lure was too much for him and he was given the part he asked for in "Not So Dumb." This is the role of an eccetnric character who has just escaped from an insane asylum.

"It fitted me perfectly," remarked Stewart dryly, when questioned about his part in the new picture.

King Vidor has directed Marion Davies in some of her other vehicles, notably "Show People" and "The Patsy," but is said to have attained greater success than ever before with "Not So Dumb," an adaptation of the stage play, "Dulcy," and a story declared by the director to be an ideal vehicle for Miss Davies' talent as a comedienne.

Whaling Industry Film Repertory Attraction

Not alone is the appeal of "Down to the Sea in Ships," synchronized with sound and now at the Repertory, to the Clara Bow fan. Miss Bow does appear in the film, but the picture is attracting many persons interested in the old whaling industry and still others interested in seeing a story of life on land and sea 75 years ago. A number of whaling captains have viewed the picture and pronounced it most enjoyable. This week there was a visitor who was on the voyage taken by the producing company to the West Indies. This visitor was Alec H. Knowles of Lynn, chief engineer of the Gaspee, aboard which Miss Bow and the rest of the company made the trip.

That was an actual whale we got," commented Knowles. "I have enjoyed the picture to the full; it certainly makes a great entertainment."

Noted German Pianist Coming for Festival

LINCOLN AND LEE IN FILM

ABRAHAM LINCOLN will not be the only hero in his own picture. D. W. Griffith, who is preparing to film "Abraham Lincoln," an all talking screen romance of the martyred President's life, for United Artists, announces that Gen. Robert E. Lee, the hero of the Confederacy, will be the most sympathetic character in the picture next to Lincoln. Lee is considered by some critics to be the greatest modern military leader next to Napoleon, surpassing even Washington, Blucher, Wellington, Foch and Hindenburg.

In the picture he will be shown as the romantic figure in grey who for four years successfully hailed the tide of Union victory until his final defeat by Gen. Grant. In addition to his place in the film drama as a military hero, Griffith will use Lee as a symbolic figure of Southern chivalry and daring. Through an ingenious usage of effects, these two famous adversaries will be shown on the screen at the same time as they contest for victory in the three most important battles of the war.

Shakespearean Star Drama School Speaker

Fritz Leiber, director of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society Players to appear next week at the Wilbur, will speak before the Cambridge School of Drama, at Harvard Hall, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Prof. Albert R. Lovejoy, director of the school, will introduce Lieber, whose subject will be the training of young actors for the Shakespearean stage.

Walter Pritchard Eaton and Prof. H. W. L. Dana are of the faculty of the Cambridge School of the Drama. On the board of governors and visiting lecturers to the student body are, among others, Norman Hapgood, Gilbert Seldes, Walter Hampden, H. T. Parker, Maurice Wertheim, Win throp Ames, Donald Brown, Eugene O'Neill, Percy MacKaye, Kenneth MacGowen.

McCORMACK SINGS 'N SINGS

JOHN McCORMACK sings no fewer than 11 songs in his first cinema. Among them are many of the old favorites—"I Hear You Calling Me," "The Rose of Tralee" and "Little Boy Blue."

"Song o' My Heart," which is the film's title, has the distinction of being the first talkie to be made in Ould Ireland. But it won't be the last, for several directors whose ancestry is Irish are filled with ambition to produce pictures photographed against the beautiful and picturesque backgrounds offered by the Emerald Isle.

The story of "Song o' My Heart" is that of a singer's thwarted romance. But the tenor does not play a lover's role except in retrospect. The young love interest is portrayed by the little Celtic "discovery," Maureen O'Sullivan and John Garrick. Alice Joyce, Farrell MacDonald, Emily Fitzroy and Andreas de Segurola are included in the cast.

CHIMPS GOOD FILM ACTORS

AMONG the numerous African animals shown in the picture, "Jango," now being presented at Tremont Temple, one of the most interesting and intelligent is the chimpanzee. Dr. Daniel Davenport, the noted international explorer, says that he has studied the animal for 10 years and is amazed by its intelligence.

Two chimpanzees were included in a cage at camp. Some haniam African chickens approached the cake looking for boiled rice morsels.

One day, while watching them, one of the apes began chucking grains of rice between the bars of the cage. On the chicken approaching to seize it, the other chimpanzee, which had picked up a stick, went to the far end of the cage where it reached through and hit the chicken on the head with the stick. An understanding had evidently been established between the two apes.

Screen Shorts

Additions to "So This Is London," Will Rogers' latest for Fox includes Lunsden Hare and Frank Albertson. Irene Rich, Jillian Sand and Mary Forbes were assigned previously.

Warner Oland, who appeared in the leading role of "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," will soon start on "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu," adaptation of which was completed by Lloyd Corrigan and Florence Ryerson

"Mademoiselle Modiste," the Victor Herbert operetta, has gone into production at First National at the direction of William A. Seiter. It will be entirely in Technicolor.

Jack Richardson, Monte Montagus and Walter Perry are the latest additions to the cast of Hoot Gibson's "Trigger Tricks," which Reaves Eason is directing for Universal.

FILM LOCATION IN THE WILDS

JOAN CRAWFORD and the rest of the players who will appear in what is characterized as a "Musical Western," have established camp in an isolated section of the San Bernardino mountains, 200 miles north of Los Angeles.

The name of the new picture is "Montana," and Mal St. Clair is the director, with John Mack Brown, Cliff Edwards, Benny Rubin, Karl Dane and Holmes Herbert in the cast.

On location with the unit is a studio orchestra and a large technical staff, while a complete portable sound outfit has been taken along.

Two Added to Cast

Oscar Apfel and Roscoe Karns have been signed for featured roles in "A Very Practical Joke," which Berthold Viertel is directing with Dorothy Mackail and Milton Sills in the leading roles.

A Lenten Specialty; Try This Dainty Potato Cake

Lobster thermidor is a Lenten specialty that's truly enjoyable. Don't overlook the recipe.

Recipe for this potato cake will be sent you on request.

LENTEN FOODS ECONOMICAL

Lent not only offers us an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with new and interesting methods of fish cookery, but it also affords us a chance to save something on our food budget, for fish twice a week for dinner is economical.

Deep fat frying is one of the quickest and easiest methods of fish cookery. You should have a heavy cast iron kettle at least one-half full of your favorite fat and be sure not to try to cook too much food at one time. It's important, too, that the foods do not touch each other in the frying basket.

Fat for such previously cooked foods as croquettes, fish balls, etc., should be heated to 385 F. or a temperature which will color a one-inch cube of bread golden brown in 40 seconds.

Oysters, clams, scallops and fritters require fat at 365 F. (40 seconds for the bread) and fillets of fish, shrimp, smelts or potatoes should be cooked at 400 F. or when a cube of bread will turn golden brown in 20 seconds.

NEW LOBSTER THERMIDOR

For a company luncheon or evening bridge party there is nothing newer or more delicious than Lobster Thermidor by this recipe:

LOBSTER THERMIDOR

Boil lobster in salted water for 15 minutes. Remove from water, let cool 20 minutes. Pick out all meat, leaving the main body shell intact for further use.

Dice the tidbits, coral and claws into good-sized pieces. Heat 1 tbsp. butter in spider, add 1 tbsp. minced onion, the diced lobster, a little cayenne pepper, ¼ cup white wine (salted cooking sherry will do), and let cook 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Add ½ lb. mushrooms chopped fine, 1 tbsp. tomato sauce and cook it 10 minutes more.

Fill shells with this mixture, pour over cream sauce, sprinkled with grated Parmesan cheese. Bake in an over for 10 or 15 minutes or until brown. Or, cover with Lobster a la Newburg Sauce, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and brown.

SALT GOOD FOR MOUTH WASH

Salt is one of nature's best antiseptics. A solution of one spoonful in a glass of water will wash away or sterilize mucous and particles of decayed food that lodge in the teeth or gums and make an offensive breath.

Any dentist or physician will tell you that the best mouth wash is pure salt water.

A LENTEN TREAT

FRIED SCALLOPS WITH PHILADELPHIA RELISH

Sift 1 cup flour on a large sheet of brown or wax paper, or place in a paper bag. On the flour place 1 pt. of medium large scallops, carefully drained. Toss the scallops around lightly until they are completely covered with the flour. Beat 2 eggs light in a deep bowl. Pick the floured scallops up by handfuls and drop them into the egg. Remove with the fingers by handfuls and toss on to another large sheet of paper containing 1½ cups or more of finely sifted bread crumbs.

Toss the scallops in this until they are completely coated. Then pick up lightly and arrange in the bottom of a frying basket in a single layer. Have the kettle of cooking oil or fat very hot when you dip the basket in and the scallops will be ready in less than 1 minute. Drain on soft paper and serve with Philadelphia Relish.

PHILADELPHIA RELISH

1 pt. cabbage (chopped very fine)
2 green or red peppers
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
½ tsp. celery seed
1 tsp. mustard seed.

The cabbage should be very crisp, and both cabbage and peppers, chopped exceedingly fine. Mix all the other ingredients together and pour over the cabbage and peppers. Mix and serve.

On this same Lesson Sheet, No VIII, we have two other favorite Lenten specialties, Spaghetti with a delicious sauce, and a Baked Noodle Ring, combined with cheese and other tasty ingredients.

You'll find on this sheet, too, the much-talked-of Tomato Soup Cake, which, when completed, leaves you guessing as to where the tomato soup has vanished. Rice Rice is another specialty on [illegible] Lesson sheet that should find a place on your menu, also the [illegible] leg of lamb, Brookline [illegible]

We have prepared an extra supply of these lesson sheets and they are ready yours, you know, on application. If you will kindly give your name and number, [illegible] the Martha Lee Women's [illegible]

I must say that if you haven't already received a registered card, [illegible] way, without charge, upon application to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

MARKET LOWER

When the most economical homemaker can't complain of the prices of dairy products, with rolled butter in pound and two-pound rolls, retailing at 2 pounds for 79c to 90c, and tub butter 39c to 43c a pound. Lard is low, cheese is moderately priced, egg prices continue downward, and both cheese and eggs fit well in meatless menus—don't forget to balance them with a crisp salad).

New in the vegetable stalls are Bermuda type onions from Chile at 10c to 15c a pound. California is sending us cauliflower, carrots, chicory, beets, lettuce, broccoli, asparagus and globe artichokes. Luscious Florida strawberries are 50c a quart basket, and lemons are reasonable also.

Lamb is the most economical meat suggestion, 29c to 35c a pound for a leg and 18c to 19c for forequarters. Fowl is lower and I found ten-pound meaty native capons in the Faneuil Hall markets at 60c a pound.

Extra large fish receipts have made a good start for the Lenten season. Scallops are particularly attractive at 59c to 85c a pint—and a dish will serve six if you use Martha Lee's particular recipe for Fried Scallops with Philadelphia Relish.

Tip on Making Good Berry Pies

In making rhubarb, cherry or any berry pie that is very juicy, try beating an egg light, and mixing in the sugar required by the fruit; add a little flour, mix thoroughly and then bake as usual. In this way excess of juice will be in the pie and not in the bottom of the oven.

Use Pastry Brush

To brown pies and tarts, use a small pastry brush and brush them with milk before putting them in the oven, and to glaze pies brush them with the white of an egg if you wish them to be shiny brown.

Left-over cooked potatoes must not be piled together as they sour quickly. Spread them out on a large dish.

BAKING HELPS

The cornerstone of successful home baking is, of course, your flour, which is why we stress the importance of being particular about the brand you select. The kind we use in the Martha Lee Kitchen, besides its principle virtues of being unbleached, is especially economical for bread making purposes.

Owing to its peculiar dryness of the wheat used as well as the improved methods of milling, this flour absorbs an unusual amount of water and, of course, makes more bread and holds moisture longer. That is, you must use more water with your flour and therefore you will get more bread to the barrel and the bread will remain moist for a longer time. You will have better bread, too—sweeter and more nutritious.

I have 50 more of those beautifully illustrated complete cook books, published by the manufacturers of this splendid flour and will be glad to send you your free copy on request.

This book covers everything from home bread making to choicest cakes, desserts, fritters and such unusual recipes as pound cake waffles, cream doughnuts, cocoa crullers, chocolate caramel cake, pudding and even ice cream—not forgetting salads and salad dressing.

Celery tops, save and dry, put into glass jars and use to flavor stews when celery is scarce.

FOR IRISH PARTIES

March isn't living up to its traditions this year for there's certainly nothing lion-like about the mild weather we have been enjoying. However, let's let the sleeping lions lie and hope that they won't wake up to belated roars in April. We certainly are indebted to March for St. Patrick's Day, when all good Irishmen gather together to do honor to their patron saint.

Judging from the way toy sales went out of every three people are planning 17th of March parties and are in the market for suggestions.

Of course, the shamrock figures in every decorative scheme, paper ones hanging from the chandelier by narrow green ribbon, pinned to the curtains and fringing the tablecloth.

A novel centerpiece is made by attaching a toy horse to a green cart bearing a cartload of shamrocks. The tiny pots of the growing plant will serve as favors for the guests.

Another attractive centerpiece might be a big Irish potato set in a bed of shamrock leaves. The potato is supposed to represent a cottage thatched with shamrock and with a small Irish doll colleen wearing an Irish hat standing at the entrance.

A Blarney Stone centerpiece can be made with several clean small rocks piled up to represent the Blarney Stone and surrounded with flowers. At each place should be a souvenir such as a toy tall silk hat, a doll dressed as an Irish Fairy, a toy pig, pipe or potato, a green carnation or a toy harp.

If the entertainment is to be bridge, then all you need to think very hard about is food, so here is a menu for the evening bridge party—one that will send your guests away happy and gay.

Pigs-in-Blankets
Peas in Timbales
Hot Shamrock Rolls
Apple Fluff Tarts and Cheese Balls

St. Patrick's Delight and Cocoanut Macaroons

PIGS-IN-BLANKETS

Clean oysters and wrap each in a thin slice of bacon. Fasten with wooden toothpicks. Broil until the bacon is brown and crisp. Serve several on toast to each person.

PEAS-IN-TIMBALES

Melt 2 tbsps. of butter, add 2 tbsps. flour and 1 cup of juice from canned peas. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly, and add peas from a number 2 can. Bring to boiling, again season to taste and serve in timbale cases. Garnish with minced parsley.

APPLE FLUFF TARTS

Combine 2½ cups of apple sauce, ½ cup sugar, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 4 well beaten egg yolks and fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Line small tart or muffin tins with pastry, fill with the mixture and bake, having oven hot at first until crust is well set; then reduce heat. When set, remove from oven and cool. Serve with a spoonful of whipped cream on top and sprinkle with minced green gum drops.

ST. PATRICK'S DELIGHT

Beat 1 cup of heavy cream and fold into it 1 cup sliced, diced pineapple, 1½ cup boiled rice, ½ cup ground peanut brittle, 8 marshmallows cut small, ¼ cup pineapple syrup, ¼ cup green maraschino cherry juice and ¼ cup minced green maraschino cherries. Chill and serve in sherbet glasses.

COCOANUT MACAROONS

Mix ¼ cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 cup shredded cocoanut, ½ tsp vanilla. Fold in 1 stiffly beaten egg white. Drop by tsps. on a well-buttered pan. Bake until lightly browned in a moderate oven.

In Cooking Peas

In cooking peas wash the pods very thoroughly and throw them into a kettle of boiling water. When done the pods arise to the surface and the peas stay at the bottom. They have a fine flavor when cooked in this way.

BIG TURNOUT EXPECTED AT DANCE RECITAL TONIGHT

THE BOSTON OPERA HOUSE will be the Mecca of society this evening when one of her pet philanthropies, the Ellis Memorial, will be aided by one of the fashionable turnouts of the season.

MANY smart dinner parties are being given for guests who will later grace the golden horse shoe at the Opera House for the dance recital of Doris Humphreys and Charles Weidman. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney are giving a dinner at their Commonwealth ave. home in honor of their son, Horace Binney, Jr., of Providence, and the Thomas J. Motleys are entertaining dinner guests at The Cedars in Hyde Park. Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, the Herbert Winslows, Mrs. Atherton Loring, Jr., Mrs. William de Ford Beal, Miss Isabella Whitney, and Mrs. Charles D. Whittier are among the box holders who are having dinner guests. Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKay Frost will bring a large group of friends, and Mrs. William G. Reuter will entertain her sister, Mrs. Stephen W. Sleeper in her box. Other notable hostesses include Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Mrs. Richard Storey, Jr., and Mrs. William Russell.

MRS. FREDERICK L. DABNEY, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., and Mrs. Benjamin D. Crowninshield are to act as hostesses at the annual spring dance on April 7 given by members of the senior classes of several prep schools for boys. This affair is of interest to the sub-deb group who are planning their debuts next season. It is to be held at the Copley-Plaza with many smart dinners preceding. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hallowell Gardiner, whose daughter, Miss Frances Gardiner, will be presented next winter, are giving the ushers' dinner for 35 of the young people. The dance committee is composed of Nelson Aldrich of St. George's at Newport, Benjamin Beals of Milton Academy, Charles Richardson and Brinley Hall of St. Mark's at Southboro, and Charles Cheever and Robert Minturn of Groton. William Benjamin Bacon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaspar Bacon and a freshman at Harvard, is assisting the committee.

THE OPENING NIGHT OF "Vincent Virtues and Vices," on March 13, at the Arlington Theater, will be "Governor's Night," when Governor and Mrs. Allen will be honor guests in a special box reserved for them in the first tier. This event will be the signal for a fashion display of unequalled splendor, since practically the entire social register will be there to witness the triumph of those debutantes elected to the most exclusive of all social organizations. One hundred and sixteen members of the club are taking part in the show, which will be featured by a stunning Russian Cossack drill of 24 girls in white satin uniforms with black boots black hats and epaulettes. The gorgeous costume worn by Raquel Meller in the film, "Casanova," and which will be worn by Mrs John Richardson in a Spanish number, will be displayed in the windows of the Andrews Shoe Store ever Sunday. This gown of silver lame, heavily bejewelled, weighs 40 pounds.

THE TICKET SALE FOR THE Vincent Club show opens next Monday at the Arlington Theater box office. Miss Anne Cutler is in charge of the ticket sale which is proceeding briskly every day this week at the Andrews Shoe Store and at Herrick's. Many society patrons have taken blocks of seats. The prizes which will be given holders of "lucky numbers" attached to one program at each performance on March 13, 14 and 15 are also on display at Andrews Shoe Store, where Mrs. Richard Hubbard is in charge of the girls selling tickets there.

MRS. JAMES REYNOLDS, who was the former Miss Betty Atkinson of Boston, has returned to the Hub to live and has had her membership in the Baltimore Junior League transferred to the Boston League, which has also gained another member in the transfer of Mrs. Leonard Wright from New York. Mrs. T. H. Harris is rejoining the Boston League also. The transfers of membership from Boston to other cities includes those of Mrs. John McGlennon, who was Miss Helen Bridges of Boston, to Chicago, and the following to the New York Junior League: Mrs. Irving Pratt (Ellen Hallowell), Mrs. Amory Gray (Isadora Bliss of New York), Mrs Norman Macy (Ethelred Satterlee), Mrs. William Hudson (Elisabeth Rice), and Miss Marjorie Peabody.

AT EACH PERFORMANCE of the film epic, "Ten Days That Shook the World," various groups of girls from the Junior League, Radcliffe and Smith Colleges, the Haskell school in Cambridge and the Community Church will usher at the Fine Arts theater. The film is being shown under the auspices of the Arkline Guild, beginning tonight. Mrs. Cornelia Stratton Parker of Cambridge is president of the advisory board. On Saturday Mrs. Parker's daughter, Miss Alice Lee Parker, heads a group of girls from Haskell school. In this group are Miss Ruth Bradlee Miss Jessica Sommers and Miss Norfi Fay. On Monday evening Miss Mary Cowles will be head usher, assisted by Miss Dorothea Ware. Miss Madeline Jonckheere and Miss Katharine Gilchrist

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beal, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Kennard Winsor, are among those leaving for Bermuda today. Miss Helen Swain and Miss Ruth Sears have sailed for a three weeks' cruise to the West Indies, covering some 4000 miles on the voyage, which will touch 10 ports. They are aboard the Furness Bermuda steamship Nerissa. Miss Peggy Gowen of Concord, who is in Paris, will start on a trip around the world, with Mrs. Albert M. Harlow, after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Y. Gowen, who have gone abroad to meet her.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH ADAMS CRAM are entertaining a large group of friends at a reception and tea to be given at the Women's Republican Club on Beacon st., on Saturday, March 22, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Carlson of Brookline, treasurer; Eric Norling of Quincy, secretary; Henry W. Erickson, Joseph L. Larson of Everett, Dr. Carl A. Lindquist, Gustav A. Sandberg of Allston, G. Capt. Melville, skipper of the City of New York, established communication with his wife through the radio research station of M. I. T., at Round Hill, South Dartmouth, in less than 15 minutes the message had been sent to Lynn and a return greeting radioed back to the ship.

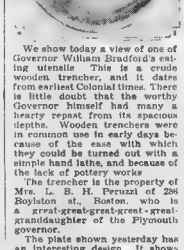
DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 40



We show today a view of one of Governor William Bradford's eating utensils This is a crude wooden trencher, and it dates from earliest Colonial times. There is little doubt that the worthy Governor himself had many a hearty repast from its spacious depths. Wooden trenchers were in common use in early days because of the ease with which they could be turned out with a simple hand lathe, and because of the lack of pottery works

The trencher is the property of Mrs. L. B. H. Peruzzi of 286 Boylston st., Boston, who is a great-great-great-great-granddaughter of the Plymouth governor.

The plate shown yesterday has an interesting design. It shows in the center an artist's conception of the famous Taj-Mahal, the marvelous palace at Agra, India, which was a popular subject for decorative design in the Eighteenth Century. Some of the earliest pictorial wall papers produced in those days had this identical view, as well as panels bearing the same armorial designs which are seen about the border of the dish

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

Mr. and Mrs. Ford in Old-Time Dances

Mount Berry, Ga., March 7—The polka, quadrille and waltz with popular tunes of long ago were danced here by Mr. and Mrs Henry Ford

The dance was given in the gymnasium of the Berry schools, one of the first buildings in the group given to the institution by the Detroit manufacturer

The student body of the schools, the Fords and Sir Wilfred Grenville and Lady Grenville took part in the dancing to music played by Ford's own string band assisted by the Berry orchestra.

This Modern World

Edited by ANN ARDEN

A Department Devoted to Fashions, Decoration and Social Customs

Fit Your Costume to the Occasion Is Fashion's New Code for Spring and Summer

THE movement toward specialization has now reached our wardrobes! The modern fashionable no longer considers it chic to wear a sportslike frock through an entire day of varied activities. Indeed, no, she must keep her sports clothes in the category to which they belong and she must have instead a wardrobe equipped to supply the right costume for every occasion

Afternoon affairs now demand either a definitely informal or strictly formal type of costume. For informal wear, the printed or plain silk dress with modified silhouette, medium length skirt and feminine detail is perfect

THE frock pictured would be quite perfect for an afternoon of bridge, it is of flat crepe in Peasant Green, the hemline even, in the accepted length for afternoon—midway in the calf—the skirt fullness achieved by circular sections, set on in deep points at the top. A vestee plastron of cream lace on the bodice, and deep cuffs of the lace to the elbow make the frock dressy and becoming A belt of the material at high natural waistline is fastened with an oval buckle of brilliants.

The news of fashions worn at the southern resorts give the variety of sleeves almost overwhelming importance. One can expect that last summer's sleevelessness will not be quite so prevalent There are various new ways to cap the shoulder. The dropped shoulder is a new and important development in the resort mode. Small cap sleeves and diminutive set-in sleeves promise to be excellent for spring and summer

HAVE you wondered whether the charming Sunday night frock would find an echo in spring fashions? It has been such a perfect in-between frock that you will rejoice to know that several of the less formal spring dinner frocks are adopting its lines The short sleeve and the deep decolletage are features of the Sunday night frock which will be seen frequently

Whether it be a tweed costume or a frock of smooth crepe, you may match it with your hose this season, for silk weaves that simulate these two popular fabrics have been discovered for hosiery This problem of matching hose to complexion or to gloves, selecting hose to harmonize with this frock or that one, is made a little more intricate by this new type but think how much more cleverly one can be garnished. Net hose to accompany the lace evening frock is a discovery of the past season that has become even more popular than in its first days (or should we say evenings)"

WE will tread a colorful path this spring going our merry way in gay shoes, for color promises to be important in the leather shoes for spring. Trimmings of lighter leather will adorn the dark shoes. Green footwear is expected to be endorsed for wear with pastel tweeds. A rather light cloudy shade of purple may be used as a trim on white shoes Bright blue with white and pale blue are expected to be worn next summer. Evening shoes of fabric will continue to be dyed in interesting colors

A new shoe and bag entente is now made by the clever means of matching monograms. A roomy suede bag of modern feeling is neatly trimmed with a striking block monogram in gilt or silver plate The same monogram is repeated on a suede opera pump

"Barbara was constipated several years ago and I gave her California Fig Syrup. It helped her so wonderfully that I have used it ever since for all her upsets of colds. It has kept her strong, energetic, rugged.

Children suffer when bowels aren't regular. Breath becomes fetid; tongue coated; eyes dull. When these symptoms are neglected, biliousness, feverishness, lack of appetite invariably follow

The first dose of California Fig Syrup relieves these symptoms and activates sluggish bowels. Successive doses help tone and strengthen weak bowels; improve appetite, encourage digestion and assimilation. Try it with a bilious, headache, constipated child and see how it clips!

ANALYZE THE ALLOWANCE ON YOUR USED CAR

If a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must make up the difference by extra charges on the new car or re-sell it to some one else at too high a price

PERMANENT value is always better than a temporary bargain in the purchase of an automobile. It pays to look ahead and consider reliability and ultimate up-keep costs, as well as comfort, safety, speed and beauty of line and color.

Since most automobiles are bought for replacement, the value set on your used car is a factor in almost every purchase. Frequently it is given an importance beyond its true worth.

Used cars have a definite market value and you are justly entitled to an allowance based on that value. It is not fair that you receive less. It is not to your best interests to receive more.

IF a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must either re-sell it to some one else at too high a price or make up the difference on the new car. This he cannot do unless he is allowed an excessive profit on the car or on financing, extra equipment and other charges. In either case you pay the bill, for no way has yet been found to give something for nothing. The money must come from somewhere.

You may not get the largest used-car allowance from the Ford dealer, but that very fact should give you confidence that you are receiving full value in the new car. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on your old car.

Because there is no waste, extravagance or undue profit in manufacturing or distribution, every dollar you pay for a Ford brings a full dollar in return. In lower first cost, in reliability and long life, in the low cost of operation, service and replacement parts, the Ford will save you much more than the seeming difference in trade allowance.

Daring Story of Eternal Love Triangle

CHAPTER I

"KISS me, honey!"

"No! No, Neil . . .!"

A silent struggle in the dark hall. Fear fluttering in the girl's heart—the thrilling fear which Neil could always inspire. His arms pinned her close, but she managed to twist her head so that his kiss fell on her cheek, rather than her mouth.

It was exciting to have Neil want to kiss her, but the actual feel of his lips crushed on her own woke tumult in her mind, a surge of emotions which she was not sure were all pleasant.

The light of the street lamp, slanting through the glass panels of the front door, did not reach this space under the stairs. Ardeth could barely make out Neil's face poised above her. A white patch . . . two dark holes—those were his eyes burning down into her own . . . a dark slash of mouth.

Something leaped in the girl's heart—something which was not all rapture nor yet all fear.

She began to struggle. "Neil, let me go! They'll wonder where I am!" she whispered frantically.

"Kiss me again, then!"

"No, Neil . . . please!" Twisting helplessly. "You shouldn't do this—waiting here for me—every night like this!"

"Why not? You like it. You're my girl, aren't you? Go on, say it, Ardeth, say you're my girl!"

She had begun to struggle wildly, but in silence. Fighting herself now, because it was exciting and pleasant to have Neil's arms about her.

Please let me go! Neil, they'll wonder . . . somebody'll come out and find us"——

"Sh-h-h!"

The warning stilled her. She ceased to struggle, and Neil's arms grew tense about her as footsteps scraped on the wooden steps outside. The front door opened. Heavy footsteps going up the stairs over their heads.

A door upstairs opened. Shut. "It's Tom!" The girl's whisper. "I've got to go!"

The spell was broken. He did not resist when she drew out of his arms, but he hung onto one hand and asked softly:

"Want to go to a movie tonight?"

"Can't." She was groping for the banister. "Have to wash out some things for tomorrow."

"Who you going out with?" he repeated darkly.

She squirmed. Smothered a laugh. "You! Foolish! Now will you let me go?"

"I'll be out in the morning—" He freed her and she fled up the stairs.

In the dark upper hall she stopped for moment to collect herself, pressing fingers against her hot cheeks to cool them. Sharp eyes were waiting beyond that door which showed a yellow streak of light at the threshold.

Ardeth pulled her hat straight. Tucked the ends of her hair under. Smoothed her blouse crumped by Neil's embrace.

Neil shouldn't do that—want each night for her to "come home." He reached the house a whole half hour before she did. At the sound of her footsteps he would slip out of his own flat and meet her in the hall.

The dark space under the stairs had seen many such silent skirmishes as it had witnessed tonight.

Of course, there was nothing really wrong . . . After all, she was Neil's girl. Some day she supposed, they'd get married. That was the way marriages happened in Ardeth's circle of life. You saw a boy you liked . . . or somebody you didn't even like him—but there was no one else around at the moment. You went to a party with him—or to a movie. You went again. Pretty soon people began to expect you to be always together. Pretty soon you found people expected you to get married. So you did.

Ardeth was Neil's girl. For three years she's been called his girl—before then, in fact—he'd gone with her. Ever since she came to live with Aunt Stel and found Neil Burke in the flat below.

But Neil shouldn't stop her at night like this. It made her late for dinner and—and she wasn't sure she liked it.

Something leaped in her heart at the memory of his arms about her there in the dark. But she wasn't sure she wanted Neil to kiss her like that.

LEGION FILES AGE LIMIT PROTEST

Charges Department of Mental Diseases Keeps Men of 40 Out of Jobs

Charges of employment discrimination by the department of mental diseases against men above 35 or 40 years of age were made today by John J. Walsh of the civil service committee of the American Legion in a letter to Dr. George M. Kline, head of the department.

Dr. Kline is in Washington and will not be back until Monday. The letter said:

"It has been brought to the attention of the department civil service committee of the American Legion that the various institutions and hospitals throughout the state under supervision of your department refuse to employ men over 40 years of age. It has also been pointed out to us that at least one of your institutions has set a maximum age limit of 25 years for applicants for employment.

"The committee is aware that employes of the state institutions and hospitals are not under civil service. There are many veterans on Massachusetts civil service eligible lists for such positions as stationary engineers and firemen who could fill vacancies.

"The public employment office conducted by the Department of Labor and Industries at 23 Pearl st., Boston, has advised this committee that it received scant cooperation from the superintendents of the institutions and hospitals in your department.

"We would kindly advise this committee of the reasons which compel superintendents of institutions in your department to establish such age limits and the authority therefore? This committee is strongly opposed to the introduction of the Osler system in this Commonwealth."

SUES LYNN MAN FOR SUPPORT

Floyd L. Goodwin, wealthy last manufacturer of Lynn, has been sued for separate support by his wife, who seeks $150 a week.

Both filed suit January 9 and heard yesterday privately by Judge White of Salem, was taken under advisement.

The couple have been wed about 12 years. Mrs. Goodwin is residing in Boston, it was disclosed, and claims to be living apart from her husband for justifiable cause. She is a niece of Lyndon V. Grover, Lynn shoe manufacturer.

ADOPT UNIFORM OF CONVENTION

A strictly Massachusetts costume is the uniform just adopted by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Massachusetts for use at the annual national convention of the Legion and Auxiliary in Boston next October.

The uniform will be dedicated and worn for the first time at the convention, and thereafter will be the official garb of the Massachusetts Auxiliary.

With loyalty to their home State the women have made it every inch a local product. All material used in the uniform is Massachusetts-made material, of cotton or cotton products. This idea was adopted to support a local industry, cotton manufacturing.

The white dress will be of cotton broadcloth, the blue cape and cap of the overseas-type faced with gold, of sateen. Stockings and shoes will also be local products.

TO BE GUEST AT MEDICAL CENTER

Will Be Center of Attraction at Laying of Cornerstone by Big Institution

New England's oldest family physician, if he can be found, will be the center of attraction at the laying of the cornerstone of the New England medical center, according to plans announced at the report-luncheon of the women's committee at the Hotel Statler.

Arthur G. Rotch, executive chairman of the fund to build the center, stated that an intensive search is being started all over New England to find the oldest family physician of the section.

"We are asking the co-operation of newspapers and other agencies," he said, "and also of the department of public health in the New England states. We feel that it will be most fitting if a representative of the family doctors of New England is present at the opening ceremonies. A primary object of the establishment of the center is to provide family physicians for New England.

"We shall welcome any news on this score, and we plan to ask the oldest physician to be our guest at the laying of the cornerstone which will occur soon after the $1,500,000 fund is completed and the Boston dispensary, the Boston Floating Hospital and Tufts College Medical College have been united into the center."

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, acting chairman of the women's committee, presided. She told of the progress of the campaign, and announced the generous way in which Mayor Curley had responded to the fund. The campaign total, she reported, is nearly at the $700,000 mark.

The doctors' committee will hold its weekly luncheon today at the University Club. Dr. Roger I. Lee, chairman, will preside.

Pastor Lauds "Sixth Word From Cross"

"The sixth 'Word from the Cross' was the greatest cry of victory in history," said Dr. Philip H Cifford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Berkeley st., and Columbus ave., at Tremont Theater today, in a sermon which was one of a series of Lenten noonday services.

"From that moment the cross of Christ became the center of all history. 'It is finished.' His sufferings were over, His life of sacrifice ended, all prophecies concerning Him fulfilled, his work finished and Redemption accomplished for each and all."

$1 to Aid in Drive for Hospital Fund

Appeals for the $1,500,000 fund to consolidate the Boston Dispensary, Boston Floating Hospital and Tufts College Medical School into the New England Medical Center will be widely made.

Surface cars of the Boston Elevated Railway, through curtesy of the management, will carry posters outlining the object of the drive and asking for contributions.

The doctors' committee met at noon today at the University Club with Dr. Roger I. Lee presiding. It was announced that two meetings of Tufts College alumni are planned in the interest of the fund.

The three women were placed on probation and ordered to make restitution in the sum of $8 to Mrs Dorothy Whiting of Casper st., who lost slips, pajamas, tablecloths, etc

20 More Customs Guards for Boston

Twenty more Customs guards for duty along the waterfront were asked today by Collector of Customs W. W. Lufkin in a conference with E. J. Rohmer, who arrived for a periodic inspection as a representative of the Commissioner of Customs.

Increased passenger business during the summer and added arrivals among foreign freighters was the basis for the request.

Mayor Curley today approved a contract for $45,000 to John F Paramino, sculptor, for making the tercentenary memorial of the founding of Boston, which will be dedicated on the Common, opposite Spruce and Beacon sts., on Boston Day, September 17

Coast Guards Race Stricken Man 250 Miles to Hospital

In a race against death, James Laurie, fisherman on the steam trawler Breeze, was rushed 250 miles to Chelsea Marine Hospital, suffering from pneumonia, today.

Laurie was stricken with pneumonia while the Breeze was 200 miles east of Cape Cod. The captain of the trawler, one of the Bay State fleet, radioed an appeal for help, and the Coastguard destroyer Abbott rushed to the spot, and took the sick man aboard.

Then began a journey under forced draft, with Laurie taken aboard the speedy patrol boat CG-178 at the Graves and rushed the remainder of the way to the hospital. His condition is critical.

Moyes of Waltham, both signed by President Gaspar Bacon of the State Senate, who has been a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce some years

Skipper Has Jaw of Whale as Curio

A curious structure of bone, believed to be the jaw of a whale, was brought to the fish pier today from the fishing grounds aboard the dragger Mary R. Mullins.

The latest "exhibit" from the deep measures nearly four feet across. The upper section showsa ridge that compares with the strainer used by whales in straining the sea water from the food they pick up. Capt. Nicholas Foley, skipper of the Mary, is holding the specimen as a curio.

ACTION ENDS 5 YEARS OF ROWING

Decision Now Up to General Court, the Mayor Says

The first agreement of all parties involved, which has raged for five years over traffic relief in Kenmore sq, was announced by Mayor Curley today.

The agreement consists of a bill drafted by the sub-committee of the committee on Metropolitan affairs, providing for subway extension out Commonwealth ave. and Beacon st

The improvement is to be made by the Boston Transit Department, with a rental to be paid by the Boston Elevated on the basis of 4½ per cent of the cost

There is a proviso, according to the mayor, that in the even the earnings of the company are not sufficient to meet the rental, it shall be paid by the Metropolitan Transit District to the city, and the Metropolitan Transit District trustees shall assess any such payments made by it to the cities and towns of the district

The bill, together with its report and findings, is ready to be submitted by the sub-committee on Metropolitan affairs, the mayor said

He pointed out that not only is it the first solution of the problem arrived at in five years of controversy, but it will also provide work for the unemployed.

In concluding his statement Mayor Curley pointed out that "responsibility for any further delay will not rest either with the city of Boston, transit department, Elevated or board of public works. It will rest squarely with the general court.

Bagpipes Halts Class in Music

Classes in "music appreciation" were interrupted at Boston University's college of music, when, with other first signs of spring, an old Scottish bagpipe player stopped under the windows of the Boylston st. class rooms and played one selection after another of the favorite Scotch classics.

The effect upon the students at the college of music was instant. Books and classes were forsakes for the sound of the bagpipes.

Where the noise of practicing instruments and vocal exercises usually blares forth to halt pedestrians, all was still. Bagpipe comedian McLaughlin's sidewalk had proved too strong

Hub Fireman Wins Certificate of Merit

Fire Chief Sennott was notified today that the American Red Cross has awarded Edward H. Mulvey of ladder 25 the first certificate of merit ever awarded in the Boston metropolitan district.

Mulvey, while off duty on Sept. 21, 1929, according to the commendation to Chief Sennott, "rendered valuable assistance in saving the life of Miss Helen Elston of Roslindale by applying tourniquets to the legs, both feet having been severed."

She died three days later but from other injuries, not from loss of blood

Curley Seeks City Probe of Own Fires

Mayor Curley asked the legislative committee on public safety to favor a portion of the report of the special commission on fire prevention which would delegate to the city the authority to investigate fires occurring in the city.

Under the present laws the investigating is done by the State fire marshal's forces, and it is Mayor Curley's belief that the members of the arson brigade now operating freely would not encounter so much success with the city caring for its own interests.

COAST GUARD CHASER RUNS AGROUND OFF GLOUCESTER IN MIST

FOG DELAYS THREE BIG VESSELS

The Passenger Liner George Washington Creeps Into Port an Hour Late

A cold fog that blanketed the Massachusetts coast resulted in the grounding of one ship and the delay of others today in advance of a cold and heavy storm predicted for tonight.

The C. G. 179, a 55-footer with nine coast guardsmen aboard, grounded on Wingersheek beach, at Gloucester, at high tide and the receding waves left her high and dry. At Coast Guard Base 7, Gloucester, it was said an attempt would be made to float her on the high tide tonight.

The 179 was on patrol duty in command of Boatswain Joseph Daniel.

Fog held the freighter Markhor, from Colombo and Calcutta, at quarantine. The Dollar Evansville was forced to drop anchor off Finn's ledge.

The passenger steamtr. George Washington, from New York, docked an hour and a half late after a cautious trip through Cape Cod canal. The freighter, Zuiderkruis, from Rotterdam, wirelessed she had dropped anchor 50 miles from Boston, waiting for the fog blanket to lift.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 200

HOUSE REJECTS NEW PREJUDICE MEASURE

Representative Ware Loses Fight After Adverse Report by Committee

The House today, on a standing vote 28 to 73, refused to substitute for an adverse committee report, a bill prohibiting racial or religious prejudices in the appointment of employes by heads of State departments.

Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, sponsor, of the bill, was warned by Speaker Saltonstall not to refer to a constitutional officer by name after Sawyer had declared that State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook had refused, in 1924, to appoint any of five men on the civil service list because of their race and creed. He urged that department heads be forced to obey the constitution.

Representative Elmer Spear of Everett, speaking for the committee on legal affairs, while stating that the committee was in sympathy with the principle of the Sawyer measure, felt that there is plenty of legislation now on the statute books to take care of such a situation.

Mayor Curley Has to Punch a Time Clock—He Says

Mayor Curley's a working man! Just check up on his daily activities and see if you don't think so.

At any rate, you have the Mayor's word for it. At a recent ceremony, when he thought the newspaper cameramen were taking a little too much time arranging him in a group for a picture, he burst out, somewhat impatiently:

"Don't forget, boys, I'm a working man. We have time clocks down at City Hall, and I have to get down there and punch mine."

And, as good as his word, he was back in his office with his nose to the grindstone before the cameramen reached their developing tanks.

WOUNDED BOY GIVES NAME

Sobbing "I didn't want my mother to know," James Slattery, 17, of Melvinside terrace, Dorchester, in the City Hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his left leg, received, police say, as he and a companion were endeavoring to escape from two officers when they were surprised while rifling the Savin Hill ave. pharmacy, Dorchester, confessed his identity late yesterday afternoon, after refusing to tell police his name for over 14 hours.

Slattery's companion, police say, made his getaway despite the fact that Patrolman Cran A. Delaney believes he wounded the youth during the attempted escape. Although Slattery has been subjected to a grilling at the hospital, he steadfastly refused to reveal the name of his alleged accomplice.

Doctor Says Kisses Are Menace to Baby

Infectious diseases are frequently contracted by young children through promiscuous kissing, Dr. Eli Friedman, Tufts medical professor, told the Women's Auxiliary of Beth Israel Hospital in a lecture on the prevention of children's diseases.

The problem of infant feeding is be said, practically solved so that rickets and infectious diseases of the stomach occur rarely. He warned against consulting persons other than physicians on questions of ill-health in children, pointing out that every child is a distinct entity and should be treated individually.

Tufts Club to Hold Business Meeting

LOST TWO SONS IN WORLD WAR

This Gold Star mother lost two boys during the war, and had a third son who tried to enlist but was not accepted, due to poor eyesight.

Mrs. Katherine H Sheehan of 74 Shipton st., Dorchester, raised three boys, William, John and Thomas.

William was the first to make the sacrifice. He was wounded and developed a serious case of tuberculosis as a result, and came back home—only to die.

John Redmond Sheehan was 27 when he enlisted in the field artillery.

John went overseas and had a long stretch. He very nearly survived the war, but on Oct 23, an enemy air raid developed.

Young Sheehan and his buddy McCarthy of Dorchester, were killed by the airmen.

The mother did not know of his death for about three months. When news of the Armistice came she felt happy, but as time sped along, she failed to hear from him.

Shortly before Christmas, the definite news of her son's sacrifice arrived. A large circle of relatives and friends planned a home-coming for the boy.

The young man will always live in the memory of his mother, as she cherishes his early kindness.

This Gold Star mother likes to "carry on" by serving the Y. D club on its various committees. She has attained a widespread reputation as a worker and has always been ready to do her bit.

Last year Mrs. Sheehan handled Americanization, and this season is doing child welfare work.

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will tell the story of Corp. Charles Franklin Briggs, son of Mrs. Clara Briggs of West Roxbury.

Fur Coat Cost 25c 'Twas Too Cheap!

Louis was garbed in the expensive-looking garment when he strolled through Harvard sq. today under the gaze of Patrolmen McAuliffe and Cleary.

"Where did you obtain that garment?" queried Patrolman Cleary.

"You mean this here coat?" parried Louis.

"Yeah, that coat," responded Patrolman McAuliffe.

"Well, well," said Louis easily, "I just bought this coat for 25 cents."

FORFEITURE OF 'ALKY' UPHELD

Forfeiture of a $368,000 cargo of alcohol was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of the steamer Cretan, seized while tied up to a North End dock.

The vessel, which sold at public auction for $6000, and the entire cargo of alcohol, were confiscated by the government.

The circuit court of appeals in its decision sustains the findings of the district court in the trial and also in the forfeiture to the government of the cargo of alcohol, which was claimed by a New York man.

U. S. BOY JOINS BRITISH ARMY TO WOO GIRL, FOUND OUT, FIRED

ARRIVES IN HUB, SADDER AND WISER

Has to Work Way Back on Ship of Line He Deserted for Love's Sake

After three months in the role of a Lochinvar, Robert M. Fox, an 18-year-old Pennsylvanian, returned to America today, sadder and wiser.

He told Immigration Inspector Thomas Ambrose that last January he deserted from the Yankee Line steamer Cordieb in Liverpool after finding the girl of his choice while on shore leave.

He adopted England on the spot and managed to pass the strict army examination to become a British soldier

Time went on and the wooing went on, but soon his American citizenship was discovered

His discharge from the army followed and hunger forced him to appeal to the American consul in Liverpool, whereupon he was assigned to work his way back to America aboard the Mercer

He is going back to North Versailles, Pa., to forget, he told Ambrose.

On the Mercer also was an American stowaway. He is Thomas Crawford, 33, of Chicago. He said he deserted a ship at Liverpool, thinking he could find better work, but failed and hid on the Mercer until she was well at sea.

Both men were allowed to land when they proved citizenship.

3 Police on Trial in Lost Child Neglect Case

The case of 3-year-old Charlotte Leavitt of Dyer st., Mattapan, sent three policemen to Lyhal before Capts. John Mullen, Rose A. Perry and Robert E. Grant at police headquarters today.

Sergt. Thomas L. Maxon of Fields Corner division, and Patrolmen Chester A. MacRury and Norman Mortimer of headquarters were charged with neglect of duty. The case was taken under advisement.

The officers are alleged to have failed to make proper reports of the finding of the child, causing her father to spend hours in a fruitless search when she was in the guard room at Fields Corner station.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me during Change of Life. I had to lie down most of the time because I felt so weak and I could not stand the least bit of noise. I was that nervous. I felt blue and could cry if anyone looked at me. I could not sleep or eat but I am much better now and am able to work every day. I certainly do recommend the Vegetable Compound and I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. J. James.

Braves Battle Yankees in First Real Game of Season

ROOKIES WILL BE TESTED TOMORROW

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7—Bring on those Yankees. After almost two weeks of hard drilling, Bill McKechnie feels that the Braves are ready to take on the American League swatters and give a good account of themselves, in the first preseason battle with the Yanks tomorrow.

But Bill isn't going to let his desire to win the spring games cause him to overlook an opportunity to study just what he has in the way of talent. Having managed the Cards and Pirates, Bill knows pretty well how the old-timers on the Braves shape up.

The ability of the new men is still somewhat in doubt. For that reason, McKechnie is going to use the youngsters as much as possible in these Florida exhibition tilts.

He believes that he can learn more about the boys, while under fire in one afternoon's game, than has been possible in the 10 days of practice held thus far.

The first game of the 1930 season will be held tomorrow, with the Tribe's old spring enemies, the Yanks, forming the opposition. Tracy Hart, husky youngster from New Hamushire, has been selected to start against the New Yorkers He will be followed on the mound by one of the older men.

LINEUP UNDECIDED

Bill hasn't quite decided on his starting lineup, but it will probably be Cronin behind the bat, Neun on first, Maguire at second, James at short, Moore at third, and Berger, Clark and Bratcher in the outfield.

The two scrub games held Wednesday and Thursday have shown that the Tribe is pretty well off for outfield talent. Berger has demonstrated that he is a classy boy in the field as well as at bat, and Bratcher has done a neat bit of fly catching, though hasn't quite lived up to his hitting reputation, as yet.

But then, Bratch hasn't been in camp as long as some of the other boys. Richbourg looks like his old self again, and Clark has shown that he must be reckoned with in selecting that regular garden trio.

Boyle has shown ability in the field, but his hitting will tell whether or not he gets a job. Randy Moore, the sweet youth from the Texas league, now appears to have the inside track at third.

SUBS READY

McKechnie appears to be preparing for eventualities at second base by working Rollings and James around that bag. Of course, Freddy Maguire is the boy for the job. It will be remembered that Freddy suffered somewhat with a weak back last year and Bill wants to be prepared if the old spine goes bad again.

At first base it looks like anybody's fight with Flaherty, Neun and Sisler running neck and neck This boy Flaherty has surprised the camp by his playing about the bag

His lusty poking at the bag has caused McKechnie to sit up and take notice. Neun hasn't quite got his batting eye yet, but his stepping around the first sack has been very pleasing.

As far as the pitching goes McKechnie feels that the Hub fans needn't be the least bit ashamed of the Braves' hurling crew. With anything like some real support behind them, the Braves flingers should show as well as most any staff in the league.

No practice game will be played today. Instead McKechnie hopes to correct some of the mistakes that he has noted in the scrub contests already played. A long batting drill will be held in the afternoon and then—bring on the Yanks

Freshman's Jump Is Engineer Record

The advisory council on athletics at M. I. T. has accepted the new high jump record of Claude Coon, who won the varsity and freshmen record of the institute.

Coon, who is a freshman, set the mark in the meet with Dartmouth freshmen at Hanover. He leaped 6 feet ⅝ inches, an eighth of an inch better than the former varsity mark

Coon then failed at 6 feet 2 inches having negotiated every jump up to his present record.

Harvard-Yale in Basketball Windup

Harvard basketball season will come to a close with the contest with Yale tomorrow at New Haven. Members of the Crimson varsity and freshman teams will leave tomorrow morning. The 1933 quintet will tackle the Eli cubs.

Yale rules favorite, with a record of nine victories and three defeats, as compared to the Crimson's slate of nine victories and five defeats.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 7—"It is going to be a big year for outdoor boxing," said Mr. Boston as he enjoyed a short stopover here today,

New York will be the scene of several important outdoor shows. The 15-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling at the Polo Grounds on June 26 for the heavyweight championship of the world will be the banner offering.

If all goes well, Vittorio Campolo and Primo Carnera will clash in the Battle of the Giants at one of the New York baseball orchards in September.

Al Singer, a Gotham fistic idol, will make a bid for the world's lightweight championship when he collides with Sammy Mandell in another outdoor feature.

An effort will also be made to sign Kid Chocolate for a tussle with Battling Battalino, featherweight king.

It is seldom that there have been so many attractive bouts in sight.

Last summer the Chocolate-Singer and Sharkey-Loughran contests were the only outdoor shows which created any interest.

Madison Square Garden has a monopoly on the New York ball parks and so will get all of the big matches other than those in which Chocolate appears. The latter is under contract with Jesse MacMahon, who has a lease on Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

EDDIE MACK of the Argonne A. A. is trying to sign Jim Maloney to meet Ernie Schaaf. This bout is a natural and has been hanging fire for two years. It will draw $50,000.

AL WEILL is anxious to sign Maloney to meet Pierre Charles at the Boston Garden this month. Dan Carroll, however, says he has several attractive offers for Maloney's services in Chicago and Detroit.

Maloney received $11,000 for defeating Moise Boquillon at Miami. This is about twice as much money as he could have got for the same match in Boston.

It is likely that Siamus will box the semifinal to Sharkey-Schmeling tussle at the Milk Fund Show.

THE big league ball clubs are beginning to receive some attention in the South. I met Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves at Miami Beach and he still has hopes that the Tribe will smash its way into the first division in the National League race.

Boston fans are hungry for a winning ball club and will give their support to the club which shows some victory habits. Incidentally, there is a fortune for the club owner who can give the Hub a winning outfit.

Tuffy Griffith Is Conway's Choice to Win Tonight

Jacksonville, Fla., March 7—Jack Conway, on route to Boston, today took a peek at the dope sheets during a short stopover here and picked Tuffy Griffith to win from Al Friedman in their ten-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight. "Griffith is the most promising of the new crop of heavyweights," said Jack.

"I saw him knock out Dr. Ludwig Haymann in the New York Garden last September. Friedman will compel Griffith to step at a fast pace to win."

B. U. DEPENDS ON HITTERS

A number of high grade batters are numbered among the ranks of Boston University's varsity baseball candidates and the Terriers should present a lineup this spring with at a half-dozen .300 or better hitters.

If those men who have shown their class as heavy stickers, either on last year's varsity or freshmen clubs, have a good season this spring and come through with plenty of base hits, the B. U. nine should stalk up a few victories on its batting strength alone.

Jack McCullough, Ollie Pickard and Glen O'Brien were the leading hitters last year. The first two members of this trio are on deck once more and anxious to get outside and start taking their cuts at the ball. O'Brien graduated last June.

When Buck Bergholtz, veteran first sacker, now nursing a broken collarbone, reports next month the Terriers will be bolstered by another player who shines at the bat. Bergholtz found himself in the late stages of the 1929 season and bloomed out as the long distance hitter of the club.

He continued to pole out lengthy drives during the summer while playing for the Stoneham town team and was the leading home run hitter on that team.

Although Buck will be lost to the B. U. nine for the first few games in April, he should be all set by the middle of next month and ready to step up to the plate.

Crimson Harriers Face Stiff Schedule

Yale, Dartmouth, Technology, Holy Cross and New Hampshire University are included on the Harvard varsity cross-country schedule, approved by the committee on the regulation of athletics at the university. The harrier team will hold a university handicap meet and enter the intercollegiates.

Members of the freshman team will meet first year representatives of Yale, New Hampshire and will take part in the University handicap meet and the open intercollegiates.

Sox Rookies Show Up Well in Practice

By JOE CASHMAN

Pensacola, Fla., March 7—If first appearances mean anything, the Red Sox have picked up fine all-around ball players in Tom Oliver, Bill Sweeney and Otis Miller, a swell hitter is Ernest Holman, and an excellent fielder is Carl Vachsil.

reputation of being a great fly chaser and fence buster who possesses a rifle-like arm and remarkable speed, showed all these qualities in his initial workout.

He looks and acts like the star that those who saw him play with Little Rock the past few years are certain he will be in fast company.

Sweeney, former Detroit first baseman, who was drafted from Toronto, isn't as graceful around the bag as Phil Todt, but he's as good as the average big time initial sacker in the field and he can hit like nobody's business.

He has already faced the majority of the pitchers who are in good shape after ten days of practice, and has murdered all of them. He slugs the apple to all fields and usually against the fence.

The hurlers are beginning to wonder how they will get him out after his eyes get sharpened up A lot of rival tossers will probably be wrestling with the same problem after the race starts.

There is little doubt but that Miller will give Bill Regan a real fight for the second base berth. The former brownie, who played with Milwaukee last year, looks like a finished performer around the keystone sack.

He fields gracefully and well, covers a lot of ground and has a strong arm. And he is, or, rather, he looks like a heavy hitter.

Since Manager Heinie Wagner is desirous of having as much punch as possible in the lineup, it would seem as though Miller would play a lot of second base.

Holman, a rookie third baseman from Shreveport, hasn't performed any wonders in the field to date, but he will be a very valuable man if he can continue to hit as he has been doing.

His first day out he hit one ball over the left field fence. In Fenway Park the onion would have gone over the clock and landed on a roof across the street. He ought to earn his salary as a pitch hitter.

CAREY SOON TO QUIT, IS REPORT

New York, March 7 (AP)—Reports have it that William F. Carey soon will retire as president of Madison Sq. Garden Corp. and that he will be succeeded by Frank Bruen, now general manager of the corporation. Carey, according to these sources, will become chairman of the board.

All efforts to get to the bottom of these reports have failed so far, but some observers were inclined to place more than a little significance on the fact that Bruen plans to return to New York next week.

At Miami last night Bruen declined to comment, but he did reveal his plans for a return trip to New York. Carey himself is en route to South America, and Garden officials here had nothing whatever to say on the matter.

So well informed apparently are those who began the reports that they have even fixed Bruen's salary when, and if, he becomes president. They say he will draw $35,000 a year, compared to the $20,000 salary paid Tex Rickard just before his death.

Utica Curlers Down The Country Club

Utica, N. Y., March 7—Utica No. 1 proved the stumbling block for The Country Club of Brookline, Mass., in the semifinal round of the Mitchell curling medal competition here.

The Massachusetts combination was eliminated by a score of 18-9, after it had defeated St. Andrews Curling Club, 14-11, its initial match in the event.

The victory of the Utica No. 1 team assured an all-Utica final for the medal, as Utica No. 2 took the measure of the Racebrook with the largest score of the tourney to date, 20-7. Final of the Allen medal in which The Country Club opposes Utica is scheduled this afternoon, as are those in the Mitchell medal and country club cup.

Veteran Short Fielder Works Out at Tufts

The Tufts infield and outfield candidates who are working out ahead of schedule have taken advantage of the warm weather of the last few days to work out outdoors. The campus has sufficiently dried out to insure good footing and afternoon sessions are devoted mainly to light infield work and fly chasing.

Norm Ingalls, veteran shortstop, has reported for practice and is in condition, having been working out daily in the gymnasium during the winter.

Homer Rugg eiro, football player, has announced himself a candidate for the initial sack, and although the big boy has never reported for the diamond game before, he is capable of giving McCarthy, Fine, Fitzgerald and Pederson plenty of competition.

The pitchers, who have been working out daily have been bearing down in the last few sessions and are ready to throw them up to the batters who are expected to start next week.

Dick Phelan continues to work with the pitchers and the former Holy Cross backstop is sharing the bulk of the work with Arlanson and Morton, the other receivers.

The catching squad has been augmented by the appearance of Don Martin, last year's freshman receiver who was not able to report on time because of basketball duties, but will be ready to step in to take his turn with the others early.

TUFFY GRIFFITH, young heavyweight flash, has come out of the West to battle Al Friedman of Roslindale tonight at the Boston Garden. Griffith, whose real front name is Gerald Ambrose, is ranked by some experts with the best in the country in the heavy class.

Griffith rules a 10-to-7 favorite to defeat Friedman. On his record, he ranks second only to Sharkey among the world's heavyweights. In his most recent fights he has defeated Paulino Uscudun and Johnny Risko.

Friedman arrived here in perfect physical condition, and contented himself with road work and loosening up exercises. He is serenely confident of his ability to whip Griffith

"He's only a four-round fighter," said Friedman. "I fought him before, and they gave him the decision, but I'll beat him tonight because I can keep up a pace for 10 rounds."

Matchmaker MacLean offers another well-balanced preliminary card to support the main bout. Wild Willie Oster of New London, and-hitting middleweight, will tackle Ralph Kid Wagner of Philadelphia in the eight-round semifinal bout.

Harvard Sextet in Shape for Yale Clash

PLAYERS REST FOR HUB FRAY TOMORROW

WAITING for the faceoff which will start it on its second game with Yale, the Harvard hockey team rested today, that it might be at its best tomorrow night.

The Crimson wound up with a scrimmage with the Bruins, and after the session, Joe Stubbs, the Harvard coach, stated that every member of the Harvard team would be in condition for the battle with Yale.

Fearful that the Harvard team might get a last minute attack of nerves, the skaters were ordered to find relaxation in some sport other than hockey today.

HARVARD ON EDGE

Signs that Harvard was beginning to crack under the strain sent a shiver of alarm through the Harvard rooting sentiment. Hardy Ellis' wild exhibition in the Harvard cage as the Bruins scrimmaged the collegians in their final workout gave rise to many a doubt about tomorrow's outcome.

In fact, Harvard was none too impressive for this stage in the game. This is not worrying Stubbs, however, who says that his charges are saving themselves for Yale.

Harvard sq. today was alive with speculators and last minute ticket seekers who tried to snare some of the elusive pasteboards for tomorrow's classic encounter. All along Massachusetts ave., and clustered around the H. A. A. offices were speculators offering all kinds of money for single tickets and pairs.

GAME A SELLOUT

Carroll Getchell announced today that every reserved seat in the Garden had been sold. Fifteen hundred rush seats will be put on sale at the Haverhill st. entrance of the Garden at 6 p. m. tomorrow night. At 8 p. m. 2000 admissions will be on sale, and the Garden will see a capacity crowd jammed to the rafters.

With 16,000 persons rooting for their respective favorites, the North Station edifice will rock with excitement. Yale is out to even the series, while Harvard is ready to put up its best battle to end the series tomorrow.

Speaking of that terrific struggle in the New Haven Arena a week ago, Hary Ellis, the Canuck goalie said that Yale's second tally should not have been allowed.

"Iglehart passed out from behind our cage into a nest of Harvard and Yale players who were milling around in front of me. I saw the puck leave Iglehart's stick and the disk was kicked in by somebody's foot. If the referee had blown the whistle as he should, the teams would not have had that extra ten minutes of battling."

Picking the favorite for tomorrow night is not an easy task. Yale should be a 6 to 5 favorite by reason of its record and because it is unquestionably a faster sextet, man for man, than Harvard.

Harvard has some strong points in its favor. It has already upset all dope by dropping the Ellis on the New Haven ice, and it now has two chances on tamiliar ice to clean up the series.

And to balance Yale's speed, the Harvard sextet has developed a hard checking game which greatly lessens the effectiveness of its opponent's forwards. Though Lacy Palmer and Iglehart were seen to skate through and around the Harvard forwards, when the Eli trio reached the Harvard blue line, the play generally ended in an all around spilling.

Myles Lane May Finish With Bruins

Myles Lane worked out with the Bruins during the Thursday practice session and if he can get into condition may be used in some of the remaining games. The Bruins are short of defense men and Lane can be of service should anything happen to George Owen or Eddie Shore.

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League paid a short visit here Thursday. It was announced that he was in town to make final arrangements for the coming playoffs.

Doubtless the McNeill case was discussed before Calder departed on the Red Wing last night.

Although the Tigers have only four more games, they need but one victory to get into the playoffs, in spite of the fact that New Haven has seven more games before it will have played its required 40.

Due to their defeat, the fourth in a row at the hands of the Tigers, the New Haven Eagles have only a slim chance of reaching the playoffs. Providence, Boston and Philadelphia appear to have the call.

MALONEY OUT FOR B. C. BERTH

Jack Maloney, a sophomore who hails from St. Xavier high school in New York city, is the latest applicant for the first base job on the Boston College nine.

Maloney hasn't been listed among those worthy of making the grade. But he will be if Coach Hugh Duffy gets a chance to see him at bat and doesn't chop him off the squad as just another candidate.

Hugh Duffy makes it a rule never to drop a boy from the squad until he gives him ample time to show in every respect, batting, fielding and throwing. But many a coach would take a look at Maloney in the first base squad and proceed to overlook him entirely.

Maloney hasn't any of the qualifications of the average first baseman. He's short, very duckly set and one might mistake him for a candidate for the wrestling team rather than an initial sacker. His physique would indicate that he lacks speed, grace and shiftiness.

Which only goes to show that externals mean little in sports. Maloney is very fast, can field, throw and dig them out of the dirt. It will have to be admitted that he isn't as good a target as some tall, rangy boy but an infielder who couldn't peg them within the reach and jump of this candidate wouldn't be worthy of say college infield.

Maloney's chief forte is hitting. He clouts the ball a mile and consorts frequently. He had a fine batting average with the freshman eleven a year ago although he didn't play in all the games

Wildcats After 2nd Win Over University Club Tonight

Referees—Bill Stewart and Bill Cleary.
Game starts at 8:30.

KENTVILLE Wildcats, having beaten University Club in the first game of the current series, are confident of cleaning up when they tackle the Boston club team in the second game in the Arena at 8:30 tonight.

The Wildcats look like the best team that has come from Nova Scotia in years. With two powerful sets of forwards they have great scoring strength.

Everett is expected back tonight and if neither Leonard or Newell can play, the Trinity place team may borrow Sid Silberberg from Boston hockey club.

Ted Frazier did not play a bad goal in the opening game, but the Wildcat attack was too much for him.

KENTVILLE CONFIDENT

The Kentville players are not worrying about any possible University reinforcements. They argue that penalties at unfortunate times kept them from winning the first game by a much greater margin than 6 to 5. University scored three of its goals while the Wildcats were short handed.

The Kentville club showed a flock of fast hockey players Outstanding among them are Ernie Mosher, who played a season on of hockey for the Maples of Boston over 20 years ago; Jimmy Town who scored the winning goal in the third period, and Red Teller, spectacular defense man.

The last named is one of Canada's notable all-around athletes. He played cricket for the Montreal A. A. last fall and was one of the outstanding performers of Canadian football.

CAPABLE PLAYER

As a hockey player he is of the same type as Red Stewart, another Nova Scotian, and Red Porters, the brilliant defense man of the last Canadian Olympic team.

Coach Walter Brault is confident that the Wildcats will come through tonight. He was more afraid of the outcome of the first game than the second, for his team had had very little skating in the few days preceding the trip to Boston, due to a thaw Down East.

If the visitors beat University in tonight's game, it is possible that they will remain in Boston to play Boston Hockey Club in the Arena, Saturday night. The latter team recently defeated University for the New England championship and Manager Bill Flynn has challenged the Nova Scotians.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

One way to make good golf swings is to think good golf swings. There is a good deal more to this idea than the golfing novice might realize. One of the first steps a good golf instructor takes with a pupil is to make a few swings for him, so he can see the action and get it in his mind. Now and then during the progress of a lesson he will interrupt the pupil, take the club himself and demonstrate the swing as a whole or some phase of it. This may appear to be for the purpose of giving the pupil a rest; it serves also to divert the course of the instruction from straight golf mechanics to golfing imagination. Self instruction should go along similar lines. Don't let all your golf thinking be concerned with the muscle part of the game because, after all, that's the least important part. Think good swings and you will find it much easier to make good swings.

(To make good pitches you must think good pitches. Chester Horton's championship coaching is available in a free, exciting, illustrated monograph on the unsable niblick; address Sports Editor, this newspaper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelop, and it will be sent to you by Mr. Horton.)

Four Yankees Injured in Practice

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The casualty list among the New York Yankees is growing at an alarming rate. Four of the boys were more or less seriously injured in practice. Two of the catchers were victims. Bubbles Hargrave stopped one of Dusty Rhodes' shoots with his wrist and had to retire. Manager Bengough took up Hargrave's job only to have the nail of the little finger of his left hand torn off by one of Rhodes' pitches.

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Life for the Brooklyn Dodgers is just one optimistic announcement after another. With the return to form of Glenn Wright, part of Wilbert Robinson's infield problem was solved, and now comes the news that in all probability Del Bissonette will be in shape to start the season at first base.

Bissonette underwent two operations during the winter, but has recovered so swiftly that he is taking daily practice with the rest of the team.

Sam has been seeing nothing but theses offerings for several days. The pitcher for the University of Texas in the exhibition game gave Sam one and the rookie belted it for a double, driving in two runs. The Giants won the game, 4-1.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Most of the Phillies regulars were due at the training quarters here today and Manager Burt Shotton planned to start intensive practice in a day or two. Up to date the workouts have been confined mostly to batting and limbering-up exercises.

Robert Reydler of the National League looked over the Phillies yesterday He said he figured Shotton's team as one of the dark horses of the league.

Fort Myers, Fla., Barch 7 (AP)—Judging from the snappy fielding and the belting they gave three pitchers in their first baseball game of the 1930 season, the world's champion Athletics rapidly are rounding into form.

Opposed to a team made up largely of rookies, the regulars pounded out 12 hits, including a double, a triple and a home run, for a total of eight runs in six innings. Six of the hits were made off Rube Walberg. Shores and Mahon each yielded three. Mahon, who hails from Pilger, Neb., is the only rookie southpaw in camp.

GLENNA LOSES IN TITLE GOLF

St. Augustine, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Playing the final five holes in a terrific thunder storm Miss Maureen Orcutt, eastern and metropolitan women's champion, defeated Miss Glenna Collett, national womens titleholder, 2 and 1 in their semi-final match of the Florida East Coast golf tournament here today.

Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, took the measure of Miss Helen Hicks, New York, 3 and 2, in the other semifinal.

Miss Collett and Miss Orcutt reached the turn all even, both golfers having gone out in 38. Coming in, the national champion took the 11th and promptly dropped the 12th to Miss Orcutt to become all even again. At this point the thunderstorm descended in sheets of rain and gusts of wind.

Miss Collett was forced to a six on the 13th, which Miss Orcutt with a 4, going one up. They halved the 14th, 15th and 16th holes, and Miss Orcutt won with a 4 on the 17th, where Miss Orcutt needed a 5.

Seattle Miss Breaks Second Swim Record

St. Augustine, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Helene Madison, young Seattle, Wash., aquatic star, has turned in another record-smashing performance, bettering the previous world mark for the 200-meter free style swim by 3-5 seconds.

She negotiated the distance here last night in 2 3-4-5 in a meet in which two other standards were broken by Liza Lindstrom of New York and Josephine McKim of Los Angeles.

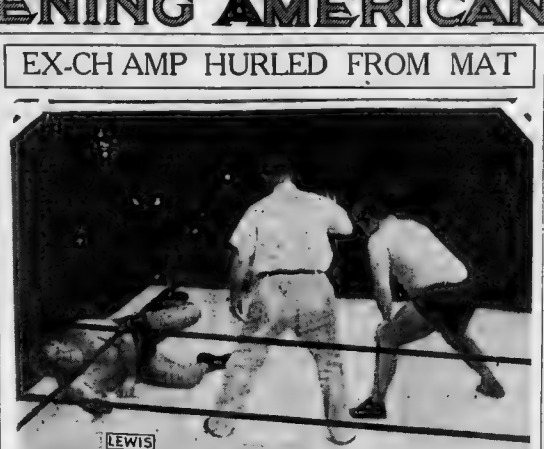
Miss Madison set up a new standard for the 150-yard free style swim here Wednesday night. The contests here were supervised by the A. A. U.

Tech Matmen Face Tufts in Final Meet

The meet will mark the last appearance of Capt. Allan Stone, 165 pounds; Johnny Cooper, 145 pounds, and Alva Perkins, 125 pounds.

Technology announced the varsity and freshmen grapplers who meet Tufts tomorrow in the final dual meet of the season.

EX-CH AMP HURLED FROM MAT



Bob McCoy of Cambridge hurled Strangler Lewis, former heavy mat champion, through the ropes, as shown above, during their match at the Arena. The go went to a 45-minute draw. McCoy had the edge of the former title holder. The Cambridge matman has come along rapidly and may get a shot at the title within the next few months.

Adams Made No Comment on Worters

By BILL GRIMES

Due to illness, President C. F. Adams of the Bruins has had absolutely nothing to do with hockey for almost a fortnight. He has been a very sick man. His ailment started with teeth trouble. Then assessed ears caused suffering and he finally developed pneumonia.

C. F. Adams' condition is so serious that for more than a week even Art Ross was not allowed to visit him. He an order from his physician, hockey was taboo from the start of his illness.

Yet the Montreal papers published a story which quoted C. F. Adams as vigorously protesting against the loaning of Roy Worters of the New York Americans to Les Canadiens for the Toronto game a week ago.

Although it is a well known fact that C. F. Adams is opposed to the practice of inter-league lending of players, he is not even interested, to the extent of openly criticizing the teams involved, in the Worters incident.

Due to his condition, he is very probable that C. F. Adams did not even know that Worters had been in the nets for Canadiens against Toronto until he was shown his quotation in the Montreal papers.

Adams has trouble enough of his own without mingling in those of Canadian promoters. The result of Les Canadiens-Toronto game meant nothing to C. F. Adams. According to Cecil Hart, manager of the Flying Frenchmen, permission to use Worters was granted first by President Calder, if arrangements could be made with the Americans Then, Connie Smythe acquiesced and finally Marooons said that it was all right with them

Leo Dandurand, who is the managing director of Les Canadiens, severely criticized C. F. Adams for the alleged protest Apparently somebody succeeded in getting Leo to explode before checking up on the facts of the case.

The local papers have been protesting for years past the practice of loaning players and have attempted to bring out that the National Hockey League is run by a four-club Canadian organization but an international 10-club league, that is prospering far beyond the dreams of even the most optimistic promoters.

Exeter Court, Tank Lists End Tomorrow

Exeter, N. H., March 7—Exeter will close the winter sport season tomorrow with the annual swimming meet with Andover here and the basketball game at Andover.

The basketball team has struck its stride and is strengthened by Arthur Lane of Arlington at center. The Exeter-Andover basketball series now stands at four games each. Exeter has won four and lost four games this season.

Belgian Rulers in Naples on Visit

Naples, March 7 (AP)—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium arrived here today en route to Egypt. They were greeted by the civil military authorities and debarked for a brief ride over the city.

PORTER URGES DRUG BUREAU

Washington, March 7 (INS)—Representative Porter (R.), Pennsylvania, before the House Ways and Means committee today advocated his bill to create a separate bureau of narcotics in the Treasury Department.

Objections by the American Medical association had been met by proposed amendments approved by a representative of the association, Porter said. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the State Department and the American Pharmeutical association have indorsed the bill, he announced.

Narcotics enforcement has always been treated as "a stepchild of the prohibition bureau," he said.

SEEK BODIES OF LOST FLIERS

Los Angeles, March 7 (AP)—Climaxing a 12-day search, two automobiles today were en route to a canyon high up in the San Bernardino Mountains above Lake Arrowhead, where the wreckage of a Western Air Express transport plane and bodies of its crew were sighted by Mrs. Juanita Burns and Dudley Steele, aviators.

The plane, piloted by James E. Doles and carrying Co-Pilot A. W. Bieber and Steward John W. Alston, had been the object of an extensive search since it became lost in a storm after leaving Kingman, Ariz., on the morning of February 23 en route to Los Angeles.

Dancers Rescued by Breeches Buoy in Big French Flood

Paris, March 7 (AP)—As Mas-Cabardes dancers at a ball were caught by the sudden rush of flood waters and had to be pulled one by one in a sort of breeches buoy out of the hall and across the flooded streets to safety.

A farmer at Grasseras found his horses and cattle in the barn with only their heads above water. He was able to feed them and finally got them to safety as the waters receded.

HEINEN BUILDS FAMILY BLIMP

Toms River, N. J., March 7 (AP)—Anton Heinen, war time commander of German Zeppelins, announced today that he had begun the manufacture of a "fool-proof" family blimp to cost no more than $1000.

Heinen said the craft, to be 95 feet long, would have a maximum speed of 75 miles an hour under full load. It is to be inflated with a non-inflammable gas of his own invention.

675 FIRES DUE TO NEGLIGENCE

The report of a study of 700 fires in Boston and Cambridge since the first of the year gives "an appalling picture of carelessness on the part of individuals," according to the Massachusetts Safety Council.

"It is not that the property loss caused by these fires totaled $500,000; it is rather that they cost several lives and injury to many," the report says. "Not more than 25 of these 700 fires were unavoidable. The use of a little common sense and a pail of water would have checked the flames at the beginning."

Woman Is Victim of Parrot Fever

Washington, March 7 (INS)—Another victim was added to the toll taken by "parrot fever" here today when it was established that Mrs. Sadie Carlin had contracted the disease while at work in the public health bureau.

Hotel, Garage Burn in $50,000 N. H. Fire

YOUNG LADY WAS TOLD SHE NEEDED A GOOD TONIC TO BUILD HER UP

Friend Visiting Home Recommended Bon-Tone. I Already Am Feeling Much Better After Taking Two Bottles, She Says

Miss Josephine Consolazio of 52 Rhena Street, Boston, recently gave the following statement to the Bon-Tone man at Epstein's Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston:

"I had been told that my blood was in poor condition, and that I would really have to force myself to eat. I was very nervous and was always troubled more or less with constipation.

"A lady visiting our house recommended Bon-Tone to me, as some of her friends had received such good results from its use. I bought some Bon-Tone, and although I have taken only two bottles as yet, I really am feeling much better. I can see a big improvement in my appetite. I eat ever so much better than for merly, I am not so nervous as I was, and my bowels are much better. All in all, I feel that the results I received warrant my giving Bon-Tone my endorsement."

Sufferers from stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders are urged to give Bon-Tone a thorough trial. It has brought relief to many, and is highly recommended by those who have benefited by its use.

Go to Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston, and meet our representative. He will explain more about Bon-Tone to you.

For your convenience Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, Perkins Square, and in Cambridge at the Cole Drug Co., 936 Mass. Avenue, Central Square.

USED CAR GAINS NEW FAVOR

That the public is assuming a new attitude toward the used car is the interpretation placed on the record making success of the spring used car sale staged by the Chevrolet Motor Co. in this city during the past fortnight. The sale will close tomorrow.

"This sale—over 800 cars to date has demonstrated that people no longer regard a used car merely as the discard of a former owner," W. F. Grayeson, city sales manager for the Chevrolet Company, declared today.

"Cars are traded in for many reasons. An owner wants a new model, or a larger or smaller machine, sometimes after only a year or so of service. The public today remembers that the average life of an auto is six years and appreciates the value offered at resale prices."

Daily Health Hint for Readers

A BABY should not have a tub until the navel is completely healed. A good time to bathe the infant is about nine in the morning before the second feeding. Of course, the baby should be kept clean at all times. Care should be taken against a chill and over-feeding.

This Day in Our History

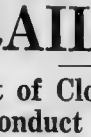
MARCH 7, 1862, the battle of Fen Ridge, Ark, was fought between the armies of the North and the South. Thirty-eight thousand men were engaged. This was one of the real battles of the war, but historians have not given it the prominence of many other battles.

TRAILING SKIRTS BRING BACK 'CLINGING VINE'

Effect of Clothes on Girls' Conduct Apparent

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

TABLE from Paris states that the great battle of the skirt length is over, without positive victory going to either side. French designers who are determined to put women into long skirts claim all the outpost in the matter of evening gowns and "business" clothes, like a Verdun fortress, still remain to be taken.



Beatrice Fairfax

It will be interesting to see whether the battle is reopened. More is involved than appears on the surface. Trailing skirts are more than likely to bring back the clinging vine type of woman with all she connotes. For the effect of clothes on conduct cannot be underestimated.

Have you ever watched an office pass a group of lounging enlisted men?

Have you ever noticed the effect of a Sister of Charity or Mercy walking past a group of swearing hoodlums?

Any educated Chinaman will tell you the bound feet of women have retarded China's growth in no slight degree. The late empress, Tzi Ann, who played a mighty part in her country's affairs, was a Manchurian—a state where foot binding is not practiced. Tzi Ann didn't hobble to the throne over innumerable rivals and obstacles on bound feet.

Turkish women, since they have discarded the veil, are demanding suffrage. The younger generation of Spanish women are weighing the towering comb and the mantilla in the balance.

"Why?" demands the duenna, Spanish for chaperon.

"Because," and it requires courage for a Spanish girl to question or stand up to her duenna, "the brave Yankee American girls, in their short tweed skirts, have such a good time."

So one of the evidences of the trend, in the matter of clothes or conduct, designers overseas are as completely baffled as were lawgivers, kings, emperors when their subjects rebelled and pulled off a revolution. They just can't understand what has happened to the docile taxpayers.

For generations women—with the meekness of dullis—have submitted themselves to designers of clothes, who put anything on them whether it was becoming, suitable, comfortable or grotesque. But a new order of women has arisen, women who use their heads more in relation to their every-day problems. They realize that clothes are an extension of personality—that the successful, wage-earning woman, if she returns to sweeping, germ-collecting skirts for subways and business offices, will lose something she has won in the way of recognition.

In the matter of evening clothes she's open to conviction, granted she falls in love with a frock which spoils the function of a carpet sweeper she'll try it out for a party—but business clothes are her business, and in regard to them she refuses to be put back into long skirts.

Personally, I decline to join the mourners' bench and wail over the shortcomings of the present generation; I know too many fine boys and girls to side with the elders who go in for calamity howling.

Human nature continues to be human, as it was in the beginning and ever shall be. At the same time, nature with the big N has a cruel way of eliminating the unfit, and a short cut to elimination is the nauseous stuff of prohibition times.

The jolly bobbed-haired miss, likely as not to offer to pay half the expenses of an outing from her own pay envelope, fades before the awe-inspiring damsel in the sweeping skirt who'll have some difficulty in walking a fence during the course of a country walk.

As for the bobbie skirt, would any woman wearing a thing so uncomfortable and silly aspire to success? Imagine a woman in a bobbie skirt, or a hoopskirt for that matter, getting up to make a speech on the floor of the House of Representatives—who would listen who would regard her as anything but a joke?

The short skirt came in as the result of wartime economy. Women have discovered how comfortable and convenient it is for business sport, travel—"all the king's horses and all the king's men"—the trailing skirt for daytime—finish the humpty dumpty jingle to taste.

Silent Struggle in the Dark Hall

"Please let me go, Neil!" cried Ardath. "They'll wonder . . . Somebody will come and find us." Neil's arms grew tense about her as they swayed.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER 48

WITHOUT any regret and without any sorrow Lovejoy went ahead with her plans.

She spent six or seven hours of every day in the Tudor rd. house, packing up the things that she wanted to keep, pressing and mending the clothes that she was going to take with her to Minden, writing letters to the telephone company, the gas company and the electric light company.

She had sold all the furniture and rugs to the Vera Bloomington auction rooms—a company that sold antique and second-hand furniture under the hammer.

On the last Friday afternoon in August she sat on the front steps waiting for the van that was coming to take away the things.

In a few hours nothing would be left of the pretty things that she had picked out with so much pleasure last May. . . . Only last May! Only three months ago!

Jiminy Christmas—but life can do things to you in a hurry when it wants to! thought Lovejoy. Who would have thought last May that she and Tom would be getting a divorce before the autumn leaves fell from the trees?

Who would have guessed that she would be going out West to a tiny Nevada town on Steve Ogleby's money, leaving Tom and the baby behind her?

What plain-looking women they are, thought Lovejoy, watching them come up the front walk on their flat-heeled white shoes. If Tom marries Norrie there'll be lots of times when he'll wish she had some of my looks.

The thought gave her a good deal of satisfaction. . . . Norrie might be a sweet, nice girl who would keep his socks mended and the buttons on his shirts. But she certainly was nobody to take his breath away and make his heart beat faster.

"Hello, Norrie," she said in a cold voice. "What's on your mind?"

—Hello, Miss Dunham."

"Tom told us that you're selling all your furniture." It was Louise Dunham who answered her. "And we came over to see if we could buy an armchair from you—cheap."

Lovejoy's green-gray eyes were as cold as the stars that shine out above the North Pole. There was a smile far back in them. A cold, hard, calculating, little smile.

"I suppose the chair that you've come to buy is Tom's own armchair, isn't it?" she asked crisply of Louise.

She turned to Norrie

"I suppose you think it will make Tom feel cozy and comfortable to have a chair of his own when he comes to your flat for supper!" she said bitterly. "But I'm not going to sell it to you! I don't want to have any dealings with you at all! —If you want my furniture you'll have to go and bid on it!"

Miss Dunham spoke up. She was one of those talky, strong-minded women who are always fighting other people's battles for them.

"We didn't come here to be insulted, Mrs. Nicholson!" she said angrily, flushing a dull, unbecoming red. "We had a perfect right to try to buy that armchair!—"

"Kindly shut up!" Lovejoy interrupted her like an impolite little girl. "Your wonderful friend broke up my home and took my husband from me! But she can't have my furniture!"

Girl Unafraid -:- By Gladys Johnson

against the door after she had shut it, blinking

She could dimly see the others look up from the dinner table. But they could see her and though none of the five could have expressed it in words, there was something vital about the girl as she stood there which turned her to a flame dancing across the common grey of their lives.

Long after she had passed out of their sphere each of them could recall Ardath as she stood against the door. A golden girl—not even the blaze of unshaded electric light could dim the radiance of her. Youth and dawning passion had kindled a fire which played in her eyes. The hair which escaped from her hat shone with vitality and the cheek it caressed was the golden pink of a ripe apricot. Tender and lovely—she stood there, her eyes touched with dreams, her lips tipped with a smile.

But dreams and smiles had nothing to do with Stella Harrison. From her place at the end of the table where she was carving the potroast, Ardeth's aunt relieved her mind.

"It's a wonder to me you wouldn't try and get here to your meals on time for once! Of all the inconsiderate people! Here I can cook my face to death over a hot stove for you and you think you can come in like a lady when you please, with never so much as a thank you—!"

The flame died down in Ardeth. She had the startled look of one rudely awakened.

"Oh . . . I'm sorry, Aunt Stel. I —I had to stay a little later. Mr. Hugeson wanted us to check some new stock—"

She was checked by a snort from Bet, Aunt Stel's elder daughter, a girl a year younger than Ardeth.

"That's a hot one!" jeered Bet. "I suppose you think we don't know you were down there in the hall necking with Neil Burke! Honestly, I should think you'd be ashamed! I'd die with shame if anyone opened the door and walked in on you!"

A hard, prim little line came around Bet's young mouth when she said this. You saw, in that moment, how like Aunt Stel she would be in a few year's time.

Ardeth flushed hotly.

"Spy!" Bet leaped to her guns. "A person doesn't have to spy to see what a fool you make of yourself—you boy-struck thing!"

"Boy-struck!" Ardeth was stung into defense. "You're the boy-struck one! Hanging around the phone every night hoping!—

"Stop it!" Aunt Stel leaped into the breech. Pointing the carving knife at her niece to emphasize her words. "Let me tell you one thing, my girl. If you'—

"Oh, for God's sake!" Tom's bellow drowned them all out. "Shut up, can't you? How'd you expect a guy to read his paper with a pack of women yelping about?"

Crushing silence followed, for Tom was czar here. Though only twenty-six years of age, he was the elder son and had been the mainstay of the family since Uncle Ed had died.

He transfixed them with a glare before he returned to the sporting page.

With an air of injured innocence Bet subsided. Fan and Paul, the twins, who had brightened up at the promise of a quarrel, turned in disappointment to their bread and gravy and resumed their efforts to kick each other under the table, undetected. Aunt Stel set her face and grudgingly carved another portion of potroast.

Ardeth went into the bedroom and pulled off her hat and coat. She hated these scenes coming at the end of a hard day's work. The depression which she always felt in this shabby house was creeping over her again

She hated this room which she shade with Bet. Hated the "golden oak" bed and dresser, scratched and warped with years. The worn carpet. The broken-armed rocker.

All the little softening touches the room owed to her. The pink-shaded lamp on the dresser—Neil had given her on her last birthday. The cretonne curtains—three Sundays had gone into their making. The pink bedspread—that had taken the savings of a month.

About the frame of the mirror, little photos of her dawning outings. Pictures Neil had taken. One of herself feeding the swans in the lake. One was looking up and laughing, her hair a light-touched mantle. That was her last Easter dress. She'd worn it for a month and she had saved for it for three.

Ardeth's bitter eyes looked back at her from the mirror

So much struggle for so little . . . This ugly room. That cheap dress. And there were girls who had everything they wanted. That girl she'd talked to in the store today—Gwendolen Parker. Girls like those come when she too would have everything she wanted, Ardeth wondered.

Diseases of Later Life

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

CHRONIC diseases, particularly what we call the "degenerative" diseases, are becoming more and more prevalent. In spite of the fact that enormous sums are expended in medical and health service, in almost every city in the land these ailments continue.

Persons of middle-age and the aged are the ones who suffer from these diseases. Such persons are really paying the penalty of past neglect.

Dr. Copeland

Many more people reach middle age now than formerly. Instead of an average life span of 40 years, as it used to be, we now have an average expectation of life of 56 years. The prolonging of the life span likely it is to acquire some such ailment It is natural, therefore, that we have more of the degenerative diseases in our day because they are characteristic of the latter half of life.

The most common of these chronic diseases are heart and circulatory troubles, cancer, rheumatism or arthritis; Bright's disease and paralysis resulting from brain hemorrhage. This is a very general grouping, but it covers what I have in mind.

There are, of course, numerous contributing factors in this increase of the average life span. This is an age of medical progress and much splendid public health work. It is a time of advanced thinking and of great public interest in health promotion through publicity of all kinds.

People are living richer lives. They contribute more largely to the welfare of society. Society as a whole is far better off than it was 50 years ago, in spite of the growth in degenerative diseases.

In many, and probably most, of our public and private schools early instruction in good health habits is the rule. Every child in North America should have health education in earliest life. The practice of habits of health should begin in the kindergarten years. Home and school should take part in giving vital health knowledge to every child.

Every community should have adequate medical and health services in order to meet this increased demand. Hundreds of patients there are who, if helped in time, can be restored to normal health and their place in society

Every person should have a physical examination by the family doctor at least once a year. To "nip in the bud" any one of these degenerative diseases, before it gets to an advanced chronic state, means one more person saved from endless suffering. He is given years of active work in life. If you do not feel up to the mark, if life seems dull and unattractive and everything an effort, you had better see your doctor.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

L. D. Q—How can bow legs be corrected.

A.—Consult an orthopedist.

A.—No.

2. Yes

T. J. D Q—What causes bunions?

A.—Bunions are caused by the pressure of the shoe on the joint of the great toe and until this pressure is relieved, the bunions cannot be cured. Wearing a broad toed shoe will relieve the trouble in some instances.

Mrs. W. J. Q—What is the cause and cure of rickets"

A.—Rickets is a disease of child hood affecting the structure of the bones and muscles. It is due to improper diet and sometimes unhygienic surroundings.

Miss C R Q—What do you advise for reshaping the nose?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY woman dreads the day when her husband's kisses shall cease to be impetuous and spontaneous, and become just automatic, like winding his watch every night.

Helen Rowland

There may be no connection between the two, but as woman's clothes get lighter and flimsier, man's views appear to be following suit.

From nine to five a man may be a doctor, a lawyer, a plumber or a business man, but once a woman is married she is and always will be a wife.

The great tragedy of being a beauty or a genius is not the tragedy of growing old, but the tragedy of not knowing when to stop. Most of us overstay our welcome.

A man's belief in suitability and companionship always lasts longer than one built on romance and emotions. You can stand bread and butter, however insipid, three times a day, but a constant diet of chocolate sundaes soon makes you sick.

A man may feel just as much emotion for a woman after marriage as he did before, but most of him develops an enormous amount of strength in controlling any expression of it

And so they married and settled down" has been changed to "and so they married and started rushing around and living on the installment plan."

And now that our knees are discreetly covered, will the men begin looking into our eyes again?

Menus for Lenten Season

NOW it is that the housewife's thoughts turn to meatless menus to serve during the Lenten season. With a little thought it's entirely possible to serve dainty dishes and well balanced menus.

Remember that the egg, cheese and macaroni Lenten specialities should be balanced by a crisp green salad with French dressing to offset their starches. Here's hoping that the following meatless specialities will prove a welcome addition to March menus.

When introducing your sister to another woman, you may say "This is my sister, Mary, Mrs. Brown (or Miss Brown)," or "Mrs. Brown, may I present my sister, Mary?"

Adjusting Nap Routine

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A FAT little fellow with freckles and a charming grin, sat on our davenport a few nights ago with his legs sticking straight out in front of him.

"He started to school last February," explained the mother, "and for the first two months he used to go to sleep every afternoon and fall out of his seat."

Constance Cameron

The tiny boy giggled and we all laughed. The picture of his chubby self rolling out into the aisle, blissfully unconscious of everything was funny. But was it funny really?

If you've ever gotten into the "nap habit" you'll know that to try to break it isn't so easy nor does it seem funny when you try bravely to work at something only to have your eyes slide shut and you wake with a jerk that almost dislocates your neck

The trouble in the case of the small boy was that he lives in a very little town where there is but one kindergarten, which is so far from his home that he was denied the joy of attending it, and also denied the gradual readjustment which takes a child from babyhood into the task of sitting quietly for long periods of time.

He was plunged right from home and frequent feedings and his afternoon nap into school life, and it was difficult for him.

If the child attends school in the morning the afternoon nap can be continued if there is need of it, but if it is necessary to enroll him in an afternoon class it will be wise to begin changing his rest periods around to fit the new schedule

No one knows better than I that it is almost impossible to make a child sleep into the morning if [illegible] later staying up at night, with a glass of warm milk at bedtime, may prolong the night's sleep a little. Many children wake early due to hunger.

If this doesn't work out well and Junior still gets up with the dawn, see that his hard play takes place early in the morning with a quieter play period just before luncheon, or half an hour lying in bed whether he sleeps or not.

Get your child used to doing without his nap, but arrange for plenty of rest and quiet in some other way and at some other time than the usual nap period.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS IS EXPECTED

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Further improvement in business is expected. The prevailing opinion in a State St. circles is that in the nearby weeks industry will have the usual seasonal upturn, and that 1930 will have a very active "last half." A number of corporations have just reported for February show gains over the like month of last year. Air Reduction, J. C. Penney and a number of public utilities are in this class.

Howard Coolley, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, as head of Walworth Co., has proven himself one of New England's foremost executives. Under Mr. Coonley, Walworth has kept pace with new trade opportunities.

A Walworth statement says. "Domestic building now consumes about a per cent of Walworth's products and industrial building about 15 per cent. Bulk of material goes into process industries, power, oil production, refining and transportation systems. Rapid growth of superpower and hydro-electric properties has opened up entirely new fields. Transcontinental transportation of natural gas and establishment throughout the country of by-products plants have only just begun to be undertaken. This industry requires products of Walworth manufacture in large quantities."

"But if one took gold to England, and presented it to the Bank of England in the period prior to April, 1925, one received a sum of English money which was worth less in the international market than the gold piece one got for it, by 10 per cent in, say, the middle of 1923. If one took gold to France in September of 1925, the loss was 75 per cent, while in late November of 1926 the loss was 90 per cent. Wall Street Is Resisting Depression

Demonstrating Its Faith in Future Despite Weakness Elsewhere

— By B. C. Forbes —

NEW YORK, March 7—Credit Wall Street with being the most cheerful and the greatest sustaining force at this moment. Wall Street is exhibiting faith in the future despite powerful influences elsewhere.

B. C. Forbes

Contrast the confidence expressed by the upward movement in shares on the New York Stock Exchange with the disheartening developments and the prevailing gloom elsewhere.

Stock average quotations have advanced very substantially since November. This week they have climbed to practically their high-set point of the year. The volume of business done has also decidedly broadened.

Commodity prices have sunk to the lowest levels since the drastic 1921 deflation. Wheat is having a hard time staying above a dollar a bushel. Cotton hasn't always kept above 15 cents a pound. Most crops are bringing low rather than high prices, while eggs and butter command little more than half the price ruling a year ago.

Unemployment is the worst in years. No human being can tell whether the idle total 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 or 5,000,000. Unfortunately, there is only too much evidence that the number is painfully large.

Railway car loadings are running seriously under those of twelve months ago. Bank clearings week by week show decreases exceeding 2 per cent. Commercial failures are lamentably heavy. Many rural and small town banks have been going under. Building activity is nothing to brag about. February foreign trade returns are likely to show shrinkages from every direction come complaints that corporations are economizing and that consumers are buying from hand-to-mouth, while installment collections inevitably have fallen off.

Tariff wrangling continues its tiresome way at Washington; uncertainty over various schedules unquestionably is exercising a retarding influence. The opposition voiced to the nomination of Mr. Hughes was interpreted in high circles as ominous, and since then the feeling has grown that President Hoover has failed to achieve effective leadership in Congress. Other developments at Washington, including the attitude of more than one politician, have not, intended to inspire financial exuberance.

Had it allowed itself to be again suspended, there is no telling how much worse things might have been.

Not only in financial New York, but throughout a large part of the land, the feeling is that spring will bring revival of business activity.

Moreover, events have strengthened how, thoroughly sound and uninflated conditions were outside of the stock market. Where, then, test came American industry and American business were not found wanting.

Then, too, the tariff clouds must pass before long. Money is plentiful and cheap, at least in the principal centers, with every indication that it will remain so throughout most of the year.

It is characteristic of the American temperament that, notwithstanding the severe losses sustained in the stock crash, the public are again manifesting a desire to purchase common stocks and are reviving no voracious appetite for bonds carrying a fixed rate of interest.

If Wall Street stability be maintained for another month or so, it will greatly encourage quickening of the business pace after spring arrives.

Meanwhile, local communities should leave no stone unturned to cope with unemployment in their midst. Neither the public authorities nor industry itself have taken sufficient interest in exhausting the chimery to ascertain the essential facts regarding unemployment week by week or month by month throughout the country. Such steps should be instituted without delay; but every possible emergency measure should be taken instantly to take care of individuals and families in distress through enforced idleness. This is the most serious task immediately at hand.

America has little to fear from alien Soviets, but America should feel the most solicitous concern over unemployment, causing its own distress.

CURB MARKET CHANGES ARE NARROW

By THEODORE ROSLOW

New York, March 7—The Curb market churned around within narrow limits today and an irregular price trend predominated throughout the general run of trading favorites.

The failure of the Federal Reserve Bank to lower the bank rate, as had been confidently expected, together with the unexpectedly large increase in brokers' loans, acted as a restraining hand on any aggressive bullish demonstrations which might have been planned.

At the same time, profit-taking on a moderate scale, together with the usual smattering of professional bear operations, was able to record changes of an insignificant character.

On the upside, Commonwealth Edison jumped 4 points while United Gas was strong and moved up a fraction.

Electric Bond & Share was moderately lower, American Gas & Electric was also under pressure, sinking 1½ points before turning up slightly.

The investment trust division was buoyant with Lehman setting a smart pace with a run-up of over 2 points. Other strong spots included Blue Ridge, International Holding and Shenandoah, up ¾ at 17¾.

Oils turned irregular after early business although Humble retained the greater part of its 2-point gain. Gulf dipped over 2 and Indian Territory and Standard of Indiana lost ground.

SHOE MAKERS' OUTPUT IS UP

Shoe manufacturers are increasing production gradually and it is expected that by Easter week more normal conditions will prevail in factories, says Bradstreet's weekly summary.

"Trade conditions are little changed since last week in upper and cheap sales leather line," it said. "Day-to-day buying continues to be active. Price movements are unimportant. Local shoe retailers report business no longer less than normal for this season.

"Trading in wool was quite active during the week. Specialty lines were in good demand, with prices little changed but a tendency to be firm. Trade is up to fairly well sold, and opinion of some dealers is that the new clip will bring higher prices.

"General volume in wholesale jewelry for the year to date is 15 percent to 20 per cent less than a year ago. Retail end of the business shows a decrease of fully 10 per cent. Jobbers of dry goods and men's furnishings report business fair, with collections slow. Manufacturers and jobbers of men's clothing are busy with spring suits. Suit and cloak manufacturers report business fair to quiet. Department store and specialty shop sales are somewhat smaller than a year ago."

Footwear Output for January Up

Total production of footwear by factories reporting to Department of Commerce for January shows an increase of 16.3 per cent over December, 1929, but a decrease of 6 per cent over January, 1929.

During January reporting factories produced 23,147,049 pairs of shoes and shoes of all classes against 22,475,482 in December 1929, and 27,245,796 in January, 1929.

Hoe's Assets in Year Are Larger

R. Hoe & Co., Inc., as of December 31, 1929, shows total assets of $13,709,219, against $12,546,363 at end of 1928, and total surplus $2,387,690, against $2,387,492. Current assets totaled $7,645,141 and current liabilities $3,286,800, against $6,280,665 and $1,338,561.

Stock Dividend on Ceco Is Ordered

Ceco Manufacturing Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent in stock, payable April 1 to stock of record March 20, in lieu of 62½-cent cash dividend due at this time, thus placing the stock on an 8 per cent annual stock dividend basis instead of $2.50 annual cash dividend previously paid.

Sullivan Machinery

Quincy Values Are Reported Best in Mine's History

New York, March 7—Vice-President Belcher of the Quincy Mining Company makes the following statement from the New York office: "Underground development are still continuing very favorable. The mine is showing the best copper values and in greater amount than at any time in its history."

BOND MARKET DEMAND FOUND IMPROVED

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, March 7 (AP)—A substantial demand for high-grade domestic bonds, based on the current easiness of interest rates and on a more optimistic view of the market's immediate future, enabled prices to maintain their upward trend today.

However, United States government issues, which have been leading the rise, sold off in the early trading. The Treasury announced a $400,000,000 issue of March 15 certificates bearing 3¼ per cent interest. The last flotation was at 2½.

RAIL LIENS LEAD

With the Liberties and Treasuries taking a breath after their sprightly move in the last few days, railroad bonds assumed the market leadership.

Yields on investment rails are above the returns on money and there was some switching of issues by the bargain hunters to place funds to good advantage.

Illinois Central 4s and Southern Railway general 4s first 5s soared 1¾. Burlington 4s (Illinois Division), New York Central general 3½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s and generals 4s, and New Haven 4½s made fractional advances.

Among the secondary listings, Missouri Pacific 5s turned over actively at around par. Hudson & Manhattan income 5s crossed 79 to a new 1930 peak.

Utilities were not far behind. American Telephone 5s of 1965 made a high at 102¾, moving in larger volume than did the same company's convertible 4½s, which at usually the list's busiest bond, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, Kansas City Power & Light 5s, North American Edison 5s and a few others approached new tops for the year or longer.

STOCK FEATURES DULL

Lorillard debenture 5s, Pressed Steel Car 5s, Victor Fuel 5s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, American Sugar 6s and Goodrich 6½s were miscellaneous bright spots in this industrial groupings.

Stocks of leaders remained dull. Loew's 6s with warrants climbed to 118½, but sold off a trifle from the top. A large demand for Texas Corp. 5s was well supplied and the bonds made only a narrow upward move.

The foreign list developed signs of easiness as the Belgian obligations, which have been strong, shaded lower.

Two small offerings rounded out a week which, with the exception of a $50,000,000 utility issue, has seen a relatively small amount of bond financing. The latter, which comprised $2,000,000 in Gulf States Steel 5s, 15 per cent debentures, due 1942, at 98, and a $2,500,000 issue of 10-year convertible 6s for United American Utilities, Inc., also at 98.

New Loans Are Set in Cotton Market

New York, March 7 (AP)—An opening advance was checked by a renewal of liquidation in the cotton market today and prices weakened later, with new crop months making new lows for the season and with the general list showing net losses of about 20 to 24 points during the middle of the afternoon. The failure of demand to broaden more importantly on the early advance was evidently a disappointment to holders of contracts or recent buyers and probably accounted for sales of the selling.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

London Conference Silly Farce with United States Becoming the Goat

WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL, First Lord of the Admiralty during the World War, spoke in Los Angeles last Fall and said the finest and truest thing ever said about this naval tangle:

"Let the United States and Great Britain by all means have naval parity. But let it be a parity of strength and not a parity of weakness."

The fallacy underlying the present London Naval Conference is that the American delegation was sent over to negotiate and, if possible, force a parity of weakness.

Churchill voiced the sentiments of the sane and sober English people when he spoke before the Navy League in London last Wednesday and protested against any such policy.

Incidentally, his words should recall to their senses some of the sentimentalized members of the American Conference delegation. He said:

"We ought not to hand over the decisions in this matter (of naval armament) to foreign nations, even though they are animated by the most friendly sentiment toward us. British naval requirements ought to be fixed by ourselves alone, and no group of nations can be such good judges of these matters as ourselves. The strength of the Royal Navy cannot be remitted to the responsibility and discretion of our late foreign allies and present good friends...

CLEANED OUT AGAIN!

Copyright, 1930

"We have never made plans for war against the United States, because we are determined no such war shall come between us. It surely follows that the size of the American Navy is no concern of ours, or at most a matter of friendly and detached interest.

"We have no reason to add a single vessel to our normal program of fleet requirements (because of what America builds), and there are many who do not see why our agreement is required to the affirmation of the intention of the United States to build."

Every word of Churchill's is worth pondering. Let Britain build and maintain a navy sufficient for her protection. She builds against an imperialistic France, which refuses to limit the swarms of submarines it is constructing to threaten the British food supply. She builds against a France which by its aggressive military alliances has regimented continental Europe into a huge war machine to maintain and extend France's aggrandizements from the World War.

Why is the size of the British Navy a concern of ours any more than, as Churchill says, our navy is a concern of theirs? Our one concern, as the President has said and the American Delegation has repeated, is parity with Britain in all categories.

In such naval parity, "a parity of strength and not of weakness," as between the United States and the English-speaking members of the British Empire, lies the hope of world peace. It does not lie in silly and dangerous plans for the United States to agree to give France more security by signing a "consultation pact" to come into effect when France gets into its next war of conquest with some foreign nation.

If France doesn't feel secure with control of the bulk of the world's 30,000,000 men under arms—why, our agreeing to go into "consultation" with her, when her next war breaks out, won't make her feel secure. The truth is that France doesn't feel secure, because she doesn't deserve to feel secure. Her record and her plans are heading her for trouble, which we should not pledge ourselves to share.

The Disarmament Conference has turned into a silly farce, with the United States again being slowly but surely cast in the role of the international family goat.

Let the President bring the delegation home. Let him wake from the dream of getting national security and parity with Britain for nothing.

'Gangland'

In Boston? Wipe It Out!

INCIDENTS of the early part of the week seem to us to constitute a challenge to police and prosecutor.

In the cellar of a North End tenement house, little children stumbled over the dead body of Angelo Rizzo, 28.

He had been dead but a short time. The revolver, new and of the police type, had been used only once. Its serial number was filed away.

The police theory is that Rizzo's death was the result of his activities as a "hijacker," meaning one who holds up and robs the bootlegger of his liquor, and we read that:

"Uniformed officers were on the alert for possible reprisal by Rizzo's pals. The police have a fear that the bad feeling which exists in gangland will burst forth and there will be more shootings."

A Harrison ave. dentist, accosted by armed men, was marched to a waiting automobile in which waited two other men.

In another case, on the same evening, two gunmen picked the RIGHT man. Tony Katowicz, described as a "grocer," was about to enter his home on Melvinside ter., Dorchester, when the thugs forced him into his own automobile, robbed him of $1000, drove with him to South Boston, threw him out at City Point and stole the automobile.

These reports might mean that we are no longer to get our news of the underworld under a New York or Chicago dateline.

They call for intelligence and fearlessness on the part of police officers of all degrees, the drafting of jurors of the law-and-order school—they can be found—and the whole-hearted cooperation of prosecuting officers.

Not like other cities in so many respects, let Boston be peculiar as the American city which promptly put an end to MURDER FOR HIRE.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WALL STREET is getting ready to put on its big spring barbecue.

The question is whether the meat will be bear or bull.

Both sides are willing to compromise on lamb.

The public has not yet forgotten last October any more than an invalid can forget his crutch.

But the nation is prosperous again because a robin was seen in New Hampshire. Our Wall Street man has given us his list of summerweight stocks which are just as reliable as using a waste paper basket for a safety deposit vault.

Pacific Ocean, Preferred. The biggest pool in the history of the street.

Ambergris—This stuff comes from sick whales. And enough bootleg has been poured into the Atlantic to make this the most valuable stock in the world.

National Economy. Suggested by President Hoover It means getting a rebate on our extravagances.

Florida Fisheries. Al Smith, Coolidge, Hoover and Grover Whalen are on the board of directors.

Golf Pants. This stock is already plus-four.

New York Traffic. Moving slowly but surely. So is the Erie Canal.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

NORMALLY, as soon as anything dies it is discovered by the floating spores of putrefactive bacteria, Nature's housebreakers, which proceed to demolish it.

There is a great variety of these bacteria. There are, so to speak, a number of rival gangs of housebreakers working without any sign of discipline or cooperation.

So the attack the proteins and fats and break them up into fluid substances; others, rivals of the first, fall upon the same material and turn it into stinking gases.

Some fall upon the nitrogen-containing molecules and turn them into ammonium carbonate —a substance which is wrestled for by two other kinds, the first turning it into atmospheric nitrogen and the second into nitrites.

Then the nitrites are seized upon by yet other bacteria and converted into nitrates. The confusion is increased by other creatures which butt in — moulds and grubs of various kinds.

But the net result of this swarming, struggling activity is good; the useless body is converted into molecules of simple constitution, gases and simple compounds in the soil, which can be used to nourish green plants.

The chemical capital, which would otherwise be locked up and unproductive, has been brought back again to play its part in the commerces of living things.

For the material of living things seldom rests; it is kept in continual circulation from body to body. Consider, for example, the muscles of a man. Their material may be used up—burnt or worn away—during his life, in which case it will be excreted in his breath or in his urine.

Or it may be present at his death, in which case it will be fallen upon by bacteria and demolished, and the chemical stocks of which it is built make their way as before either into the air or into the soil in the form of comparatively simple molecules.

In either case, sooner or later, it will be built again into a living thing. Carbon dioxide in the air is absorbed by plants to be built up into their substance; nitrogen is absorbed by special bacteria in the soil and turned into nitrogen compounds.

H. G. Wells

And the substances in the soil are sucked up by the roots of plants. The plants are eaten by animals, the animals die or are eaten by other animal—even by men—and thus the material is handed on from one form of life to the other.

Life is a continual commerce there is a rhythm, a cycle, from inorganic substances in the air and soil to plant-tissue, thence to animal-tissue, from either of the last two stages via excretion or death and decay back to the air and the soil.

And this everlasting rotation of life is kept in motion by the radiant energy of the sun.

For the green plants build up complicated substances, out of simple ones by means of solar energy, the vegetarian animals use and burn these compounds and the carnivorous animals, consuming the bodies of the vegetarians, use them, too; true indeed it is that "all flesh is grass."

And finally, the last drop of energy is wrung out of these substances by the putrefactive bacteria. So we can compare the life on our planet to a wheel; matter going round and round, solar energy streaming through it and keeping it in motion.

5—The Smallest Living Things

THE invention and gradual improvement of the compound microscope has led us stage by stage into a world of tiny wonders, a world that becomes more and more mysterious as one proceeds to smaller creatures. In the first excitement of this discovery it was thought that our power of magnification was in theory at least unlimited.

It was thought that one could go on combining lenses forever; that if only one could make lenses without aberrations of line and color there would be no secret of Nature, however minute, that one could not magnify and make visible. But unhappily, that is very far from true.

There is a limit to the smallness of the things which can be seen, a limit imposed not by any fault of the lens grinders, but by a property of light itself.

We know that we shall never be able to see distinctly anything less than one-four-thousandth of a millimeter across (one hundred-thousandth of an inch), however powerful our lenses may be, because of the inexorable wave-length of visible light.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 7—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder where John D., Sr., buys his caps? Lillian D. Wald, the Lady Bountiful of Henry st. The blind street fiddler and his one-eyed dog. Margalo Gilmore. Nothing attracts New Yorkers like a wild animal picture. Micheal Strange, Barrymore's ex.

Howard Brubaker who makes a living writing pithy paragraphs. The Broadway gambler who wears a square-crowned Stetson, and resembles a character out of an Owen Wister book. Why do wire-haired fox terriers jump all over you. Sneeze, an ace-of-spades cabaret singer.

A cafe named for La Fitte, the pirate. We trust not appropriately. A gale of skiing caps. And bet you cannot pronounce "skiing." A jewelry store with a special smoking salon for women. A new camera with a delay shutter so you can zip the button and get into the picture.

Theodore Dreiser, a Terre Haute, Ind., boy, who made good in the city. Swank apartment house rental sign: "Lease Opportunity." What became of watch fob manufacturers? Why do pedestrians always stop at the curb and look back after a quick rush across the street? Maury Paul bouncing along.

The newsreel theater continues to pack them in. And the Criterion continues to have the most elaborate movie signs in town. Steve Tilton and his wife. Gerson's new cafe—a rendezvous for the theatrical crowd. And the flip talkers in front of the Palace.

And few so far as I have noticed can tie an evening tie like Michael Arlen, swing a cane like George M. Cohan, wear a muffler like John Barrymore, display a pocket handkerchief like Aubrey Eads or wear a lapel flower like Jack Buchanan.

Now that the ancient Knickerbocker Theater is coming down, the Empire stands as a lonely sentinel on Broadway below 42d. It was one of the most comfortable and roomiest in its hey-dey and was to the musical show stage what the New Amsterdam is today. In the past few years it has been used chiefly for revivals of old favorites.

A speakeasy proprietor sends an invitation by hand: "Drop in and try my newest cocktail. Potent, no end. And called 'The Canary.'"

I know. One and you start to twitter. Two and you hop up on a window sill and begin to beat yourself against the pane.

Listen, World!

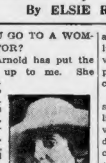
WOULD YOU GO TO A WOMAN DOCTOR?

Miss Esther Arnold has put the question fairly up to me. She doesn't limit it, however, to women doctors. She includes women lawyers, women real estate dealers, women editors, in short, all women professionals.



Elsie Robinson

"Why discriminate," says she indignantly, "against women doctors just because they are females? Don't they have to go through exactly the same training as men? Haven't they exactly as much knowledge when they graduate? Then why aren't they just as reliable as men? Yet people won't admit they are. And the worst offenders are other women! Time and again I have heard women say that nothing would make them go to a woman doctor. To me this seems plain treachery to their sex."

Yes, I suppose it looks like that, sister. But I'll admit I'm not very whoopee about women doctors myself. And I never can find it in my heart to blame others for being equally luke warm.

I admit a woman may know as much as a man—

But she doesn't know it as long. It takes so much more than technical knowledge to make a human being competent and reliable. It takes co-ordination with life . . . an adjustment of the individual to the mass. And the impersonal, abstract viewpoint that comes from such an adjustment.

Women, by force of circumstance, have lived very personal lives. They have highly personal viewpoints and they generally don't want any other kind. As a consequence, things get their goats easily. They're apt to run amuck over trifles. They lack perspective. They're great little girls, but they're not quite ripe. And, as a result, I don't want a woman to cut out my appendix or sell my real estate or bring my lawsuits, I may, and frequently do, love these women as friends. As friends, I would give them every cent I possess. But when I want professional service I go to a man.

And there is another reason why the woman professional does not inspire confidence. She does not inspire confidence because she does not possess it herself. She is a stray cat in a strange garret and she knows it. Beneath all her egotism there is a wavering strain of fear . . . a quicksand of uncertainty which may engulf her own fortunes and the other fellow's.

When women are working at a job they know . . . when they are supervising playgrounds or adjusting homes or caring for children or attending to any other of the manifold civic services which have grown out of housekeeping, they can't be beat. But, when they tackle a man's job, they are still subject to the fidgets.

And I, for one, don't want any sister sap fidgeting over my major operations.

If that be treason bring on your shot gun squad. But please make 'em males.
